"MANY a mickle makes a muckle," and Uncle Sam realizes it, thanks to Secretary Mellon. To say that the Coolidge-Mellon program cuts $835,000,000 more from the public debt this year, means a saving every year hereafter of $33,000,000 in interest alone. That amount of money invested for a few years in national improvements would eliminate swamps, deserts, get rid of mosquitos, and be worth to this country more than our total national debt.

THE DEBT in August, 1919, was twenty-six and one-half billions. Since then the debt has been reduced to nineteen and a half billions.

If we could find money for national improvements as easily as for war, this country would be much improved.

YESTERDAY 60,000 students from Catholic parochial schools, academies and universities participated in Chicago's Eucharistic services. On the previous night 230,000 men, members of the Holy Name Society, lighted simultaneously 230,000 candles, illuminating the great field.

The light of those candles, physically speaking, could not penetrate far into the night through which this planet is whirling.

But bearers of the candles could reasonably hope that each was identified and counted

ULLIAN GUILTY IN 'RAP' CASE OF BRIBING COPS

Before a throng of lawyers and others who packed Judge Wilfred Gray's session of Suffolk Superior Criminal Court, Attorney Nathan Ullian was today found guilty in six counts of bribing Boston policemen.

The finding was contained in a sealed verdict handed in last night by the jury, and read at the opening of court. On the six remaining counts Ullian was found not guilty. The conviction carries a maximum penalty of 5 years in State Prison on each count, and a minimum on each of 1 year in House of Correction and $3,000.

The verdict, the first in the so-called take-the-rap cases started by Dist. Atty. Thomas C. O'Brien, created excitement among the legal fraternity and in police circles.

Dist. Atty. O'Brien asked for a continuance until 10 o'clock tomorrow at which time sentence will be imposed by Judge Gray.

In obtaining their verdict, the jury found that Ullian had corruptly made gifts and gratuities to Officers Arthur O'Shea and John Cullinan, members of the liquor squad of the Dudley street police station, to obtain their inaction in the line of duty.

The first two counts on which the

EVANGELIST TELLS HER OWN STORY OF CAPTURE

Because of the conflicting reports that followed the disappearance of Aimee Semple McPherson, Universal Service today dispatched an airplane with a staff correspondent to Douglas, Ariz., when word was received that the evangelist was found alive. The Universal Service correspondent immediately upon arrival visited the woman in the hospital and was the first to definitely establish her identity.

By OTIS M. WILES,
Universal Service Correspondent.

Douglas, Ariz., June 24.—Ransom of $500,000 was the price placed upon the head of Aimee Semple McPherson by the three kidnapers from whom she escaped.

This was revealed by the noted woman evangelist today, when she told the complete story of her abduction, mistreatment and miraculous escape to the United Service representative here.

The kidnapers were apparently the same who, two weeks following "Sister" McPherson's disappearance from the beach at Ocean Park, had bartered with a blind lawyer in Long Beach to act as their agent in collecting the ransom money from "Mother" Minnie Kennedy and the Angelus Temple.

"They told me they were holding

MOTHER OF 3 DIES CALMLY ON GALLOWS

Manchester, England, June 24.—Inside the gray walls of Strangeway Jail a woman—the mother of three children, one of them a babe—was hanged today.

She was Mrs. Louise Calvert. She was executed for strangling to death her landlady, Lily Waterhouse, and then robbing her.

Although Mrs. Calvert maintained her innocence until the eleventh hour, it was understood that she made a full confession of the crime just before being led to the scaffold.

2 COMEAU CASE BOYS SENTENCED TO PRISON FOR ARMED ROBBERY

Albert Deshon and John Robert Sambursky, two of the three Roxbury youths tried for the murder of Policeman Frank J. Comeau in Dorchester, were sentenced to life imprisonment today in Suffolk Superior Court.

The sentences were on a charge of robbing, while armed, the drugstore of Thomas J. Smith in Dorchester avenue, Dorchester.

Stanley B. Toothaker, third youth in the triumvirate, was sentenced to six years in the Concord Reformatory on an indictment charge of burglary.

Previously today Deshon—the only one of the three convicted in the Comeau killing, and then only for manslaughter—had been sentenced by Judge Sisk in Superior Court to from 19 to 20 years in State Prison.

Sambursky and young Toothaker were acquitted by the jury that heard the murder testimony.

Deshon took his sentence with an unchanging countenance, but Sambursky's knees sagged, his face became gray and ashen and he appeared on the verge of collapse. He rallied, however, and had almost recovered when the boys were taken from the detention pen again. Young Toothaker was calm throughout.

Deshon and Sambursky, immediately following sentence by Judge Fosdick, were started for the State Prison at Charlestown, where they

13 MISSING IN FIRE ON GLOUCESTER BOAT

Thirteen members of the crew of the auxiliary fishing schooner Falmouth out of Gloucester were listed as missing today, when Captain Eric Carlson and eight men landed on Sable Island reporting their vessel destroyed by fire 28 miles off the island. Boston and Gloucester men make up the ship's crew.

Captain Carlson said the ship had been abandoned after the gas tanks exploded from a fire that started in the deck-house.

Members of the crew who survived with Captain Carlson were Peter White, Louis Babine, Andrew Straus, Frank Davis, Peter Carr, Peter Muise, Joseph Dentremont and Emery Calder.

The Falmouth was owned by the United Fisheries Company of Gloucester and carried a crew of twenty-two. She is listed at 124 gross tonnage.

Hope that some other vessel of the fishing fleet may have been able to rescue the remainder of the crew was expressed in Gloucester today, but no report of the men has been received.

The Falmouth sailed from Gloucester on June 10. She was last seen in the fishing grounds known as the "Graveyard of the North Atlantic."

12 THRONES ARE USED IN EUCHARISTIC CLIMAX

Mundelein, Ill., June 24 (A.P.).—In nature's great sanctuary, flooded by a brilliant sun and fringed with verdant trees and shrubs, the last rites of the 28th International Eucharistic Congress were celebrated today before a throng of 700,000 persons.

Before a huge altar canopied in silk and velvet, overlooking from the top of a grass carpeted hill the two-mile sweep of St. Mary's Lake, Cardinal Bonzano, legate of Pope Pius XI., celebrated solemn pontifical mass under the fairest skies of the congress sessions.

After the benediction the eucharistic procession, more than three miles long, filed through a partial

$28,500,000 A YEAR COST OF 'DRY' FOR

Washington, June 24 (A.P.).—An intimate picture of the Federal prohibition agencies was placed before the House today in a report containing testimony given recently by Assistant Secretary Andrews before the House appropriations committee.

General Andrews placed the total cost of prohibition now at $28,500,000, said one of his chief difficulties in enforcement was handling dry agents who accept $1,000 a month "to look the other way," and conceded under questioning by Chairman Madden that he was an "optimist."

He told Mr. Madden, however, that, although he might be a "ridiculous optimist," he expected to see "real beer off the market by Christmas," and when the chairman asked if it would be "just for the Winter months" he replied:

"No; I mean off the market."

This colloquy came after the prohibition chief had estimated that 15,000,000 gallons of industrial alcohol were diverted to bootleg whiskey last year and that, when "cut," this represented at least 30,000,000 gallons of liquor.

Industrial alcohol diversions were confined largely in the "big manufacturing sections east of the Mississippi and north of the Potomac."

sea of humanity in the climatic pageantry of the five-day religious festival.

50,000 WAITING.

At 5 a. m., when the first special train left Chicago, more than 50,000 people already were on the dew-covered grounds of the cloistered seminary of St. Mary's-of-the-Lake and long lines of pilgrims clogged wide roads in every direction for several miles. In other roads thousands of automobiles moved in slow procession to the scene. Four railroads unloaded thousands before 7 o'clock and special trains moved up to the seminary gate in almost an unbroken line.

Many pilgrims had spent the night on the seminary grounds or camped in nearby fields—in tents, automobiles and beneath the stars.

POMP AND SPLENDOR.

In the great sanctuary before the seminary chapel the mass was celebrated in a setting of color, pomp and splendor, rivaling that of the richest page of medieval history.

From a cloudless sky the sun shone brilliantly upon red, gold and white banners which fluttered before the twelve scarlet draped thrones of the cardinals.

Far below, like an amethyst set in old silver, sparkled St. Mary's Lake, to which were carried the intonations of the celebrants and the chants and hymns of the choir.

The altar was at the end of the lake directly before the tabernacle of the permanent chapel. Completely covering the east side of the edifice was a silken curtain of cardinal red.

WHITE AND GOLD CANOPY.

A canopy of white and gold hung from the top. The canopy bore the papal insignias and on the curtain was hung in letters of gold the salutation to the coming of Christ, "Ecce Agnus Dei."

The white altar was almost completely shrouded in yellow roses and palms. Elevated on the white stone steps leading to the sanctuary the gold crucifix and six tall candles of deep yellow in gold holders looked over the great throng of worshippers below.

To the right of the altar was the throne of the papal legate. On either side rose the thrones of the eleven other princes of the church.

THOUSANDS OF PRIESTS.

Below the cardinals were the green plush kneeling benches of the bishops, and still farther down the hill on a miniature peninsula jutting into the lake were thousands of priests and nuns. Beyond were the hosts of laity, silent in awe and adoration.

Into this Fairyland, the Catholic pilgrims of many lands came to pay tribute to the Blessed Sacrament of their faith.

The first sound of the "Angelus" at 6 o'clock had found hundreds of pilgrims crowding into the white corniced brick church. Here the day's ceremonies really began with the chimes and the prayers that told of the Incarnation of Christ and the motherhood of the Madonna.

The favored few of the pilgrims who gained entrance to the church had no monopoly of the "Angelus" for all around beneath trees and in the far-reaching green fields hundreds dropped to their knees in prayer at the sound of the chapel chimes.

PHALANX CLUB IN RUM CASE

Revocation of the charter of the Phalanx Orchestra Club, Washington street, Roxbury, loomed as a probability today with conviction of Harris Taylor in Roxbury on a charge of keeping and exposing liquor for sale in the place.

Taylor, arrested in a spectacular raid by police on the club, pleaded guilty today and received four months' suspended sentence. He was placed on probation for a year.

Under the law conviction of a person for a liquor violation in a chartered club empowers the Secretary of State to revoke the charter, providing the conviction is reported to him by the police commissioner.

Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson said he had not been notified of the conviction.

"You may rest assured there will be no delay in reporting the conviction to the Secretary of State as soon as notice is received from Roxbury Court," he said.

Little Orphans Greet Cardinal O'Connell

By JAMES WALSH.
(Staff Correspondent of the Boston Evening American With Boston Pilgrims at Eucharistic Congress.)

Mundelein, Ill., June 24.—Undoubtedly the most glorious religious function that has ever been conducted in this part of the world and the most stupendous in point of numbers and brilliancy of display was held today on the great open space on which the seminary of the Chicago archdiocese stands.

The magnificence of the ceremony and the colorful spectacle staggers the imagination. A great artist or a great poet might fittingly portray the function with a master brush or pen, but to the ordinary mortal it is beyond comprehension.

Again Boston and New England played a prominent part in the great congress. His Eminence Cardinal O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston, known the world over as one of the greatest of churchmen, ranking cardinal of the United States, had a high place in the colorful procession of cardinals from Europe and America, dressed in the scarlet robes of their princely positions.

The great climax to the greatest eucharistic congress ever held started at 11 o'clock with solemn pontifical high mass. His Eminence John Cardinal Bonanzo, papal legate, being the celebrant. Hundreds of thousands of people from every corner of the earth were in attendance, assembled in every available inch of space on the 1,200 acres that makes up the seminary limits. Only the pathways around the grounds and the lake were kept free, in order that the procession of the Blessed eucharist m

The sermon at the mass was p

Cardinal Hayes of New York. Here and there in every available place the Stars and Stripes and the yellow and white of the papal colors were flying around the seminary grounds.

The chapel is after the colonial style. Another spiritual feature of the seminary is a beautiful set of Stations of the Cross made of colored marble on either side of a pathway leading to a grotto similar to the one at Lourdes, France.

Cardinal O'Connell left the steamer South American this morning following the reception by the representatives of the city making the journey to the seminary in a limousine.

He was accompanied by the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Richard J. Haberlin, DD., his secretary and Chancellor of the Boston archdiocese and the Rt. Rev. M. J. Splaine, DD., I. P. P., pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Roxbury, and was escorted by motorcycle police of Chicago and Waukegan.

The Cardinal's suite, besides two Monsignors include Walter E. Guyette, Knight Commander of the Holy Sepulchre, and Knight Commander of St. Gregory of Lowell; Humphrey O'Sullivan, Knight of St. Gregory also of Lowell and James P. Phelan, Knight of the Holy Sepulchre of Lynn, each dressed in the magnificent uniform of his rank. The Boston pilgrims were brought to the grounds in special cars. Cardinal Bonzano as Papal Legate will have the place of honor in the procession, bringing up the rear of the Cardinals who also will be the last in line. The other Cardinals will take their positions according to their seniority as Cardinals. This means that Cardinal O'Connell has one of the places of honor.

Cardinal O'Connell, in a statement declared the Boston pilgrims have created a tremendous impression by their devotion at the Eucharistic Congress.

The cardinal said:

"The demonstration of faith and devotion to the Blessed Eucharist which we have witnessed day by day is simply overwhelming. The streets are filled with pilgrims on their way to the various places of devotion.

"The churches are thronged to suffocation every morning and every night, and the attitude of the whole population is one of reverent and respectful veneration for the religious motives that are prompting this remarkable exhibition of religion.

"The numbers, alone, are simply overwhelming. At nearly every one of the masses in the stadium there are, I am told, between 400,000 and half a million people. The whole ceremony is visible to this enormous multitude and modern contrivances make it possible to hear every word of the preachers.

"I am glad to know the good people of our archdiocese are following this glorious congress of the faith with sympathy and devotion. The Boston pilgrims have made a deep impression upon all who have witnessed their devotion, and I am sure they have made one at home.

"May God's blessing upon the whole country be one of the great fruits of the Eucharistic Congress.

GANG TORTURED EVANGELIST; PLANNED $500,000 RANSOM

me for $500,000 ransom," Mrs. McPherson said. "They had written letters to my mother explaining their proposition. When I refused to write a letter to my mother at their request they tortured me by burning my right hand with lighted cigar butts.

WANTED HER AS "SLAVE."

"At another time they threatened to sell me as a slave to a Mexican whom they introduced as Felipe if I continued to refuse to aid them in their plans."

Mrs. McPherson's face was set with deep lines, mostly around the mouth, and her wrists and ankles were sorely bruised from the weeks of constant binding by her abductors.

All day long scores of new-found friends visited at her hospital cot, congratulating her. Many knelt beside the white cot and prayed for her safe return. Numerous others loitered outside the hospital in wondering bewilderment at the so-called miracle that had delivered a woman, long thought drowned, from the dead.

"God has resurrected me from the dead," Mrs. McPherson told them with a wan smile.

A few of the incidents in her experiences, Mrs. McPherson cannot recall, but to the Universal Service correspondent she told a straightforward story of one of the most unusual abductions in the history of the West.

WENT TO SECLUDED SPOT.

She preferred to begin at the beginning, from the moment when Miss Emma Schaffer, her secretary last saw her on the beach at Ocean Park.

"Monday, you know, is always my day of rest," she said. "But on Monday I revealed to my congregation at two packed houses the log of my recent trip through the Holy Land.

"Thousands had come and could not squeeze into the temple. They crowded around the doors until 10 p. m. I could not turn them away, so I told them I would repeat the same program on the following evening.

"Mother told me I needed a rest before I faced my people again. She advised me to go to the beach. I went there with Miss Schaffer. Naturally I am timid about appearing in public in a bathing suit so I sought a secluded spot on the beach.

"Miss Schaffer and I went directly to the Ocean View Hotel.

"We went up to a room and I put on my swimming suit. Then walked directly to the beach. We had a bowl of soup and then I sat in the sands at the edge of the ocean to study my sermon for the following Sunday.

"As I was studying I told Miss Schaffer to find a telephone and order some biblical slides for me. I wanted them for my illustrated talk that night.

"Miss Schaffer left and I went into the water. I swam almost out to the end of the pier. Swimming back, I noticed several life guards drilling on the beach."

Mrs. McPherson explained that she swam out from a point in front of the Ocean View Hotel. When she swam back to the beach she was opposite the plunge, several hundred feet north of her starting point.

"I didn't come all the way out of the water," she said. The penalty of being a preacher is to always be modest, so I remained standing waist-deep in the surf.

LURED BY A WOMAN.

"While I was watching the guards I heard 'a voice—a lady's voice.'" A touch of sarcasm was stressed upon the word "lady."

"'Oh, Sister McPherson,' the voice called. The salutation came from a woman with black hair and brown eyes. She was heavy set, weighing about 185 or 190 pounds, and she was crying.

"A man, whom I believed to be the woman's husband, was standing near by.

"'Sister McPherson, my baby is dying.. I want you to come and pray for my baby,' the woman pleaded.

"'Where is your baby?' I asked.

"'In the car by the bathhouse.'

"I begged to be excused, because I was attired in my bathing suit. She told me she had gone to the temple looking for me and that my mother had told her where to find me. She said my mother told her I would be only too glad to be of Christian service to her.

"But, my dear," I told her. "I'm in my bathing suit. I cannot leave the beach in this attire.'

"I wanted to go back to the beach to get my dress. The woman and man protested. They did not want me to go back. They undoubtedly had watched their chance to get me alone and I think they feared Miss Schaffer would soon return.

"The woman draped a huge ulster coat around my shoulders and I consented to go with them."

Mrs. McPherson said the man and the woman walked beside her. As they approached the car, the woman left them and ran to the car, then climbed into the rear seat.

DRUGGED BY CAPTORS.

"The car was a sedan. It was on the right side of the street that runs along the north side of the Ocean Park plunge," she continued. "The car was headed north, toward the speedway, and the motor was running.

"The man told me to step in. The woman was huddled in a corner of the rear seat with a bundle in her arms that I mistook for her dying baby. Another man sat beside her.

"'Even though my baby dies, I will feel very happy because you prayed for her,'" the woman told me.

"I was barefooted in my bathing suit and with only the big cloak around me. I placed one step on the running board.

"'Step in,' the man told me—

"And then everything happened.

"It was so sudden. Instead of the dying baby, the woman had a bundle of blankets. The man and the woman threw them over my head. They threw me to the floor of the car. Something that felt like a sponge was thrust in my mouth. It was sticky sweet and I lost consciousness."

From that moment until her arrival in the abductor's lair, believed by her to be near Mexicali, Mrs. McPherson can recall nothing.

WAS HELD FOR RANSOM.

"I awoke in an old bed and I was very sick. It must have been on the dawn of the next day—Wednesday. The weather was hot and stifling and I thought I might be in the Imperial Valley. On that day I heard Mexicali mentioned and I concluded that was where I was being held prisoner."

The house where she was held was a two-story structure. The upper floor was unoccupied, but Mrs. McPherson often heard footsteps overhead. She believed it was there where the abductors discussed their plans.

Golf Easy Game? It Was Fatal to This Man

Rochester, N. Y., June 24 (A.P.).—W. Waldo Brown, 39, broker, is dead today as a result of playing 72 holes of golf in one day, according to physicians.

Brown, who suffered from an "athletic" heart, collapsed as he finished the last hole of four straight games and was taken to a hospital. He died from blood clots on the heart.

HARVARD CONFERS HER DEGREES ON '26 CLASS

MELLON IS MADE DOCTOR OF LAWS

Record Number Awarded at Brilliant Commencement Exercises in Yard

Closing its 290th year, Harvard University today, at Commencement exercises, awarded 1,625 degrees, the largest number in its history.

Of these, 568 degrees went to undergraduates in the recognized "Senior Class," and 12 were conferred as honorary degrees on well knowns, including Andrew Mellon, secretary of the treasury and George F. Baker, New York banker, who gave $5,000,000 to the Harvard Business School.

Secretary Mellon received a doctor of laws degree as did Baker.

Other honorary degrees were conferred upon the following men:

Charles F. D. Belden, librarian of the Boston Public Library, master of arts; Frederick S. Mead, former comptroller of Harvard, master of arts; Joseph Lee, former Boston School Committeeman, doctor of laws.

Dr. George G. Sears of Harvard Medical School, Doctor of Laws; William Lambert Richardson, for fourteen years dean of faculty at Harvard Medical, Doctor of Science; Thomas Nelson Perkins of Boston, Doctor of Laws; John H. T. Main, president of Grinnell College, Iowa, Doctor of Laws, and Professor Alfred N. Whitehead of Harvard, Doctor of Science.

Sir Arthur William Currie of Canada, Doctor of Laws, and Edward H. Bradford, deceased, former dean of the Harvard Medical School.

Marching through the Harvard Yard to the Sever Quadrangle, the seniors, garbed in cap and gown, were accompanied by President Lowell, the Harvard Fellows and other officers, alumni classes of twenty-five years standing and older and a number of invited guests, including Governor Fuller, Bishop Lawrence, Sheriff John R. Fairbairn of Middlesex County and Mayor Quinn of Cambridge.

"OLDEST" OLD GRADS.

The oldest graduate present at commencement was Edwin Hall Abbott, class of 1865, who is 92½ years old, he boasted, and doesn't feel the extra half year a bit.

The oldest man coming from a distance to attend the exercises was Edward Carter of Montreal, class of 1860, and a man 86½ years old. Two of his classmates present to greet him were John T. Mors, 86, of Boston, and Charles M. Nelson of New York, who is a year older.

Lonesomest man at the commencement in the matter of being greeted by classmates was Henry M. Rogers, Boston attorney, who is 87 and a member of the class of 1862. He was the only one of his class present.

WEARS INSIGNIA.

During his conferring of degrees, President Lowell wore for the first time his insignia as Grand Commander of the Legion of Honor, a dignity conferred upon him several months ago by France. The insignia is a small cape of ermine and blue and red silk worn on the left shoulder.

As the award of degrees began, it was announced that Clement Cleveland, Class of 1867, was the

CHARGE CHIEF LINED UP COPS FOR PEPPER

Washington, June 24 (A.P.).—Called as a surprise witness in the Senate campaign funds inquiry, Pittsburgh's chief of police, Peter P. Walsh, told the investigators today that he kept out of the Pennsylvania Republican primary campaign except for talks with "friends" and members of his department.

He was for Senator Pepper in his fight for renomination, the police official said, and for John S. Fisher, the Pepper-Mellon candidate for Governor, but he replied in the negative when asked by Chairman Reed whether anyone asked him to "line up the police force for this ticket."

Q.—Did the police contribute to the campaign? A.—Not that I know of.

Q.—Isn't it a fact that you took a very active part in this campaign and lined up the police force? A.—No, sir, that is not true.

Senator Reed passed out a letter and Walsh identified his signature at the end of it.

Q.—You wrote a letter like this to the police? A.—No, sir; only to the detective bureau. It's customary to have detectives get out the vote in their territory.

Q.—You didn't want them to go out and work in the campaign. A.—No, sir.

Q.—Now, didn't you intend to have the police roll up big majorities for the Pepper-Fisher ticket? A.—No.

Q.—Didn't the police wear Pepper-Fisher badges in the last campaign? A.—Yes, a good many of them.

Before resuming its hearing the committee had a private conference with Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, regarding Wheeler's charges of expenditures by the liquor interests in the Pennsylvania primary.

The consultation was held at Wheeler's request and apparently was for discussion of a list of witnesses who might be called in connection with the liquor slush fund charge.

3 'WIVES' ARE TO PUNISH 'COUNT'

A five-year-old boy, alleged to be his son, will soon call upon "Count" Paul Monte for a "showdown."

In that moment Monte will be forced to acknowledge the child or face Federal prosecution, the irate mother declares.

The "count" has steadfastly insisted all along that he has but one wife, Mrs. Esther Wiseman of Winthrop, but Mrs. Michael "Witman" Boccardy of Lewiston, Me., now stopping in Orange, Mass., comes forward with a claim that she is Monte's second wife, and that the boy five years old, was born of the union.

She names a third woman, whom she alleges was persuaded to enter into a marriage ceremony with Monte, a former Miss Merle Sapp of Texas.

Mrs. Boccardy says she has corresponded with this woman and with Mrs. Wiseman, and they have formed a triple alliance to see that Monte is made to pay and pay dearly for their heartaches.

Mrs. Boccardy married a second time after having annulled her marriage to "Bruce Whitman" who she says is Monte. She declares she will bring her son to Boston and demand that he be recognized by Monte as their offspring.

If the boy is denied, Mrs. Boccardy threatens to go to the Federal authorities and to "hound him to jail for life."

BROCKTON YOUNGSTERS WIN 5-CENT CARFARE

Brockton, June 24.—A five-cent fare for children will be inaugurated on the Brockton division of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway, July 1. This will make it possible for youngsters to get to the four city swimming pools, situated quite a distance from the city, for a nickel. The fare now is 10 cents.

Mrs. Michael Boccardy says she is "Count" Monte's second wife. He called himself "Witman" then, she says. The five-year-old boy is his son, she declares.

'SEA LOG OF PASSION' READ BY HUBBY

Ensign Told Him of Relations With Pretty Spouse; Decree for J. H. Bickford

Protestations of love for each other made by young Mrs. Frances Rutherford Sheppard Bickford, formerly of Cambridge, and Ensign Harold O. Larson, U. S. N., introduced in Middlesex Probate Court today won a decree nisi for John H. Bickford.

The vows of love were contained in diaries, letters and telegrams which Bickford said he obtained from a Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, apartment where his wife had visited. One extract from the woman's diary was dated Sunday, March 29, 1925, and told of a visit at the apartment of a woman friend where Larson, familiarly referred to by Mrs. Bickford as "Swede" or "Sailor," was present.

"Gave myself to S. and was utterly happy," the extract read. "S. cried."

HIS PERSONAL SECRETS.

Under date of April 11, 1925, the diary bore the words:

"How I love him! Before God he is my husband."

On July 13, 1925, Mrs. Bickford wrote:

"I want to leave Jack, and [illegible] before S. reports back for duty. I love him so. Have told him about my love."

Larson's private log was also introduced as evidence, Bickford explaining he had obtained it with his wife's papers. It was leather bound and bore the inscription: "In case of death destroy without reading. Extremely personal and not to be read except by the owner, Harold O. Larson."

The log also bore the dedication, "To my love, Frances," because he was unable to mail letters for awhile. It contained many confessions of their relations, made a plea for a bungalow, and referred to Mrs. Bickford as "The Supreme You."

"DELIRIOUS WITH LOVE."

Referring to a request that he come to Boston, Larson wrote that he would when the time arrived. He added that he hated deception and would tell "Jack," as he was encroaching on a tie he respected.

Under date of July 3, 1925, there was an entry to the effect that the writer had talked with "Jack" and the conversation meant a separation from Frances for two years. The writer said he only asked for her happiness, declared he was "delirious with love for her" and that he feared for the future.

The suit was uncontested, although Mrs. Bickford herself brought suit for divorce after leaving her husband in December, 1926. Neither Mrs. Bickford nor Larson was in court.

IN SECRET WEDDING.

Testifying in his own behalf, Bickford said they were married at Annapolis on August 9, 1924, secretly, and that he had been "excluded from college." He said he and his wife lived together for the first time in the Spring of 1925, coming to Cambridge June 28, where they made their home at Strathford Hall, in Prescott street. Bickford said he worked in Boston in the insurance business.

In December, 1925, he testified, his wife left him when they were living in Crawford street, Cambridge, and went home to Baltimore, later bringing suit for divorce, but the case was not heard.

Bickford said he first heard of Larson at Christmas, 1924, and afterward talked with him in Cambridge.

He testified the naval officer told him he (Larson) loved Mrs. Bickford, and asked that Bickford agree to give her up if he could not make a success of marriage in two years.

"SMOTHERED IN KISSES."

A telegram to Mrs. Bickford from Michigan, signed 'Love, Swede,' was introduced as evidence, asking her to meet the sender at the Boston & Maine station in Boston. A letter was also introduced, signed

RESCUE WOMAN STUCK IN LIFT

Firemen were called today to rescue a hysterical woman, a passenger in an elevator at No. 113 Canal street, when the "lift" stuck between the first and second floors.

According to Benjamin Hogsett of No. 104 Washington street, Charlestown, elevator operator, he was taking his lone passenger down from the second floor when the potential switch snapped and the elevator "froze" a few feet above the first floor landing, but high enough to imprison the passenger and himself.

The woman became hysterical and screamed. Someone turned in a fire alarm and firemen tore down the cage to let her out.

will spend their first day of the life sentence in solitary confinement.

In the other direction young Toothaker was taken to Concord.

In imposing sentence, Judge Fosdick said:

"The proper function of this court is not to administer vengeance, but primarily to protect the public. Reformation is by no means the controlling factor in imposing sentences.

"I am not going to be severe with Toothaker, but I am disposed to be [illegible] severe indeed, on the others. I have not heard anything which makes me think anything else but that these two men are very dangerous to the public.

"They cannot be classified as hardened criminals, but they have no balance wheels and it is my duty to keep them from doing the things their minds impel them to do.

"Society has a right to feel it is being protected, as well as actually be protected. I have got to be severe in this. I have got to put them where they can do no more harm. Their reformation is in the hands of the pardoning powers if they wish to take such action. I am not going to take the responsibility.

"Toothaker is different from the others. Deshon and Sambursky I am going to send to the Charlestown State Prison for life, the first day to be in solitary confinement. And Toothaker I sentence to six years at the Concord Reformatory."

tal of $965,436.29 to be added to the list of gifts.

When President Lowell had finished reading the list of gifts, the treasurer of the Class of 1901, celebrating its quarter-century anniversary this year, stepped up to the platform and handed President Lowell an envelope.

The president opened the envelope and then announced that it contained a check for $150,000, the gift of '01, with 350 members participating, to be used unconditionally.

Cheers went up from the assembled alumni as President Lowell corrected the total of gifts to read now more than $7,000,000.

MOTHER HANGS IN ENGLAND

The hanging took place despite the fact that thousands of persons by petition interceded with the Home Secretary, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, for clemency. To the appeals Sir William said he found no ground which would justify him in advising the King to interfere with the carrying out of the due course of the law.

Among those most energetic in circulating the petitions for a reprieve was Mrs. Calvert's husband, from whom she was separated at the time of the murder.

WILL "WAIT IN HEAVEN."

Mrs. Calvert wrote a letter to her sister-in-law last night in which she said:

"Don't worry for me. I am quite all right and am keeping up right to the last. I only want to see my sonny once again and to kiss him good-bye, then I will be satisfied." (This was a reference to her son Kenneth whom she saw after writing the letter.)

In a postscript she added: "Tell Kenneth to be a good boy and then he will see his mother again in Heaven and that I am waiting for him."

"Swede," and beginning "Dearest Frances," in which a line read:

"We have loved too sincerely and fully to be satisfied without a bungalow and all. I would like to smother you with kisses."

Robert Compton, janitor of the Strathford Hall apartments, testified that Mrs. Bickford told his wife and himself of her relations with Larson whom she referred to, he said, as "Swede" or "Sailor."

Under date of April 12 Mrs. Bickford wrote in her diary, it being Sunday:

"Went to Church and prayed to God to keep us all. S sent a present. I kissed it and cried. Everything is all right with me."

"Wednesday, August 19—In town all day. Dreadfully tired. Wrote S. bless his heart."

A letter written by Larson from a naval hospital was introduced in which Mrs. Bickford was characterized as "too sweet for words." "I am still at the hospital," the ensign wrote, "but am gold-bricking." It was signed "Swede."

An entry from his log, dated Manistee, Mich., June 9, 1925, read:

"I dreamed of you last night in Baltimore. I swore before God I would make you mine. I know you would come through with colors flying and I want to prove my love and devotion."

Under date of July 4 he wrote: "My eyes are dimmed with tears of love. It must have taken centuries to have reached this apex of love which we enjoy."

"July 5—There was the most wonderful moon on the Fall River line going up the Sound. The ships are laden with gold and silver dreams. I am delirious with love of you. I worship you. I idolize you."

Question Four

Why is periodical draining of the crankcase so important?

CLEANLINESS is the greatest promoter of economy in the operation and upkeep of any type of machinery. But the automobile is used in the open, often in dusty air, and in all kinds of weather. This makes more difficult the maintenance of a clean motor unless you

DRAIN CRANKCASE PERIODICALLY

In Socony Motor Oils you are sure of oils that Lubri*coat* and cushion every moving part, increase compression and power, and resist high motor temperatures. But no matter how good the original oil may be, it is constantly subject to contamination that reduces its lubricoating qualities.

One part of gasoline requires sixteen parts of air to make a burning mixture. Air contains a slight percentage of water, and also dust or grit, some of which finds its way to the crankcase, particularly on dusty roads. When starting cold, some gasoline vapor may be condensed on the cylinder walls and drains to the crankcase. Dirty spark plugs will fail to fire all the mixture, and this unburned gas also drains to the crankcase.

DILUTION

Thus, the oil is diluted and eventually becomes too thin for an efficient lubricant. When thin, dirty oil is used, specks of the bearing metal will pound out. Thinned oil also increases carbon formation under the pistons, and these specks of metal and carbon promptly join the crankcase oil. In time it inevitably becomes too contaminated for use.

The safe plan is to drain out your crankcase every 500 or 600 miles, or as frequently as the manufacturer of your car recommends, and, after flushing with Socony Flushing Oil, refill with the grade of Socony Motor Oil that is recommended for your car by the Socony Chart.

HUB KNIGHTS IN BIG PARADE

More than 8,000 Knights Templar, including 200 from the DeMolay Commandery, K. T. of Boston, marched today in Springfield in a parade, the feature of the second day of the centennial celebration of the Springfield Commandery. Approximately 50 commanderies from Massachusetts and Rhode Island were represented in the parade.

Attorney General J. R. Benton reviewed the parade as the official representative of Governor Fuller. A field day program at the Eastern States Exposition Grounds followed the parade.

Boston knights left Boston this morning, marching from the Masonic Temple to the South Station, headed by the Aleppo Band which was one of the forty bands and drum corps that took part in the parade.

he said, and outlined a plan for increasing the size of the enforcement unit to cope with this diversion.

"What do you think will be the effect" Madden asked.

"It will eliminate, first, the source of supply for the illegitimate traffic in liquor, and probably turn the bootlegging industry to illegitimate distillation," he replied.

"Then what will happen?"

"Then I am asking for the right to get search warrants on the basis that we have evidence that a private dwelling is being used as a commercial distillery. If we get that law we will make it pretty hard for them to distill their source of supply. If we succeed in turning the industry away from that source of supply, then, ultimately, we will get it back on the basis where every man will make his own whiskey in his own home for his own consumption."

"Then what?" continued Madden.

"Then I will have more than done my work."

UP TO LOCAL OFFICERS.

"You do not mean to say that those who manufacture it at home in violation of the law, will have any immunity," interposed Representative Buchanan.

"I did not mean that," replied Andrews. "I mean that the local communities ought to take action in those cases; not the Federal Government."

Prohibition enforcement, he estimated, will add approximately $14,400,000 to the operating expenses of the coast guard the next fiscal year.

ULLIAN GUILTY OF BRIBERY

lawyer was found guilty were based on a raid on the home of Jacob Karp and his wife, Ida, in Wyoming street, Roxbury. The evidence showed that Mr. and Mrs. Karp were arrested after the police seized three 275-gallon stills, considerable mash and paraphernalia for making liquor. The stuff was not found in the apartment occupied by the Karps.

The couple were taken to Roxbury court with Ullian as counsel, but later dropped him and retained Samuel Markell, both being acquitted.

The jury found that Ullian gave Cullinan and O'Shea on Dec. 29, a short time after the raid, $25 each as "Christmas presents."

The next two counts had to do with a raid on the home of Charles Brown, Humboldt avenue druggist. Brown testified Ullian wanted to put into court Mrs. Brown. The druggist said he paid Ullian a retaining fee of $100, then elected to go to trial without him, and was found not guilty.

The jury found Ullian gave money to the officers in connection with this case, Brown having testified the lawyer said he wanted money "to take care of the boys."

The last two counts were based on a raid on the home of Jack Nelson, the jury finding that on April 30, 1926, about the time of the raid, Ullian gave money to both Cullinan and Shea. The government contended a man known as Howard Emerson "took the rap" for Nelson, appearing in court and claiming to be the owner of the liquor.

This was the only case in which it was charged that someone "took a rap."

After the arguments ended, Dist. Atty. O'Brien filed a motion asking Judge Gray to take the case away from the jury and order a verdict of guilty on the ground that Ullian had taken the stand and admitted giving money to policemen.

Attorney Francis J. Burke of Roxbury and the police officers attached to Station 10, Roxbury Crossing, who were indicted by the Suffolk County grand jury in one of the "take-the-rap" cases, will not be tried until the October term of court.

REPORT BILL OF $43,000,000

Washington, June 24 (A.P.).—Carrying a total of $43,372,000 of which $14,156,000 is for new public buildings throughout the country, the second deficiency appropriation bill was reported to the House today by its appropriations committee.

Of the total $9,300,000 is to meet deficiencies occurring in the fiscal year which expires at the end of the month. The remainder is to supplement funds already provided for the new fiscal year beginning July 1.

The committee eliminated four of the seventy-seven [illegible] public building projects recommended by the Treasury Department, those at Seattle, Wash., Juneau, Ala.; Malden, Mass., and San Pedro, Cal.

The bill carries $5,000 and contract at $102,000 for a federal building at Newburyport, Mass., for buildings at seventeen army posts, $2,250,000 and authorization to contract to the extent of $3,520,000 more. Construction of three of the ten new vessels authorized for the Coast Guard Service to combat rum runners, $1,000,000. Refund of automobile and cigar taxes under the new revenue law, $5,250,000; to carry into effect the Bingham-Parker Commercial Aviation Act $625,000; for an army target range in Vermont, $200,000; for additional personnel and expenses for enforcement of prohibition $2,686,760.

2 CAMBRIDGE YOUTHS HELD IN JOY-RIDE CASE

A joy ride, taken in an automobile by four Cambridge youths, ranging from fourteen to sixteen years, ended disastrously in Medford, following an accident in which they were involved and two of their number arrested.

Those now in custody [illegible] James Port, sixteen, of Pearl street, and Trevoy Bryden, fifteen, of Salem street.

The boys started by taking an automobile from the rear of the Central Square Theatre, apparently for the purpose of taking a ride.

LAW GRADUATE GETS POST

R. Gaynor Wellings, 22, of Roxbury, appointed secretary to the justices of the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court, is the youngest graduate to receive the degree of Doctor of Law from the Harvard Law School, class of '26.

He entered Boston College High when 11 years old, following his graduation at the Lewis Grammar School, Roxbury. At Boston College he was a debater of unusual ability and was signally honored by judges of faculty of Fordham University during an intercollegiate debate.

A scholarship was awarded him during his second year at Harvard. He is now touring the White Mountains on a vacation and after a trip in the Middle West will take up his duties in the Suffolk court house.

PEEPING TOM SAYS 'GUILTY!'

Arrested in an alleyway off Marion street, East Boston, as a peeping Tom, Adrian Jedrey, twenty-three, of Monmouth street, pleaded guilty today in East Boston court to the charge of disturbing the peace.

The case was continued a week to permit State mental experts to examine Jedrey.

Jedrey's arrest follows numerous complaints from the "Hill" section of East Boston. He was arrested near the apartments of Mrs. Dorothy Crawford, No. 17 White street, and Mrs. Elizabeth Cushman, a neighbor. When Jedrey refused to leave the premises they phoned the police.

BRUISED AS BULLETS WOUND WOMAN

SMALL VICTIMS
On her pony is 11 months-old Mary Tanso, whose mother was shot as she was carrying her. Inset shows three-year-old Josie Giosi, sister of Mrs. Tanso. Both children were bruised as Mrs. Tanso fell.

Eleven-months-old Mary Tanso, daughter of Mrs. Theresa Tanso, who was shot by one of several bullets fired in Salem street, is comfortable at the Tanso home, recovering from bruises she suffered when she fell out of her mother's arms.

Mrs. Tanso was carrying Mary in her arms and when she was hit by the bullets she fell to the street. Josie Giosi, the three-year-old sister of Mrs. Tanso, was bruised about the face when she fell on the sidewalk. She was walking beside her sister at the time of the shooting.

Both youngsters were taken care of by neighbors and later were taken to the home of Mrs. Tanso's mother-in-law.

DAWES MAY CAST DECIDING VOTE

Washington, June 24. (A.P.)—As the showdown of ballots on the McNary equalization fee proposal approached today, the division of Senators over this plan of farm relief was so closely balanced that consideration was being given to the possibility that Vice-President Dawes might be called upon to cast the deciding vote.

The Vice-President, proponents of the measure pointed out, is one of the few economists identified with the administration who have approved the principles involved, through his endorsement of the opinion written by Sir Josiah Stamp, noted English economist, holding them sound.

Opponents expressed equal confidence that, if called upon to break a deadlock, he would vote with them. They also predicted that, if the measure should be passed, President Coolidge would veto it.

Leaders hoped to bring about a vote on the measure before the end of today's session, with debate limited to five minutes for each Senator after 1 P. M. After this vote action must be taken on the Co-operative Market bill already passed by the House.

U. S. Senate Won't Even Have This Bill Read

Washington, June 24 (A.P.).—Consideration of the Behemoth bill to consolidate and codify the general laws of the United States will require a special night session of the Senate Friday.

The measure is more than 8 inches thick, contains 1,700 printed pages, weighs pounds and pounds, and cost $16,627 to print.

Any Senator might lengthen the session of Congress considerably simply by requesting that "the amendment be read."

Printed in the usual form the public printer estimated it would have made 13,720 pages and cost $186,534.26.

SET FLOOD LOSS AT $10,000,000

Berlin, June 24 (A.P.).—Floods throughout Germany caused to great extent by heavy rains, already have caused the death of two persons and property damage estimated at $10,000,000. Lightning has caused the death of seven soldiers at Beuthen and of three persons in various sections of the country. The flood victims were drowned near Wittenberg.

More than 50,000 acres of potato, rye, beet and hay fields have been flooded. The Elbe River, several hundred miles north of Dresden, is a raging torrent and has broken levees near Magdeburg. Several villages near Halle and Stuttgart are under water and the population has fled to the hills.

above, where each falling sparrow is noticed and the hairs are counted on the heads of all human beings, now numbering about 1,600,000,000, on this earth.

BYRD, BRAVE and able young American flier, returns to America from his flight over the North Pole, and is nobly received by the public, the Mayor of New York, and a big committee.

"Aviation has pulled the teeth of the Arctic." Commander Byrd tells Mayor Walker. "Flying over the pole was no harder than flying anywhere else; in fact, it is easier, little wind in the cold regions."

The most beautiful thing about Commander Byrd's homecoming was the expression on his mother's face as she stood beside him on the ship that brought him home.

THIS MORNING at the Strangeway jail in Manchester, England, a woman was hanged for murder. Thousands, in vain, signed a petition for mercy. The woman's three children, including a small baby boy, saw her in jail for the last time on Monday. Those children, destined to be pointed out through life, are punished more severely than their mother. But English law is thorough, relentless, and it does discourage murder—more than you can say for United States law.

A YOUNG MAN and his wife were found shot dead in their Long Island home yesterday, and reporters were excited. It was a fashionable home, in a fashionable neighborhood, and they were fashionable people. In addition, they were rich and, as a finishing touch, the husband had ancestors that came over in the Mayflower.

What did this couple, hurried from life, find in the other world? Is there aristocracy there? Did they wait, in line, for their turn?

MR. WHEELER tells Senator Reed that the Anti-Saloon League spent thirty-five million dollars to pass the dry law. The trouble is, the country is not dry. While the Anti-Saloon League was spending $35,000,000, the bootleggers were taking in more than a thousand millions.

LADY ASTOR, whom this country provided to be the first woman member of Parliament, demands an end of soft coal smoke nuisance in British cities. It would end in ALL CLEAN cities if the people could realize that black smoke, shutting out the health-giving rays of the sun, shortens life, prevents recovery from sickness and, indirectly, commits murder.

FIGHT N. E. ON COAL RATES

Atlantic City, N. J., June 24 (A.P.)—The Central Pennsylvania coal producers, who mine the low volatile bituminous in the big Clearfield district, began their battle today before Interstate Commerce Commissioner J. B. Campbell of Spokane, Wash., to prevent the granting of railroad rates which will give the West Virginia soft coal operators an alleged advantage in supplying fuel to points in New England.

The New England Governors' Fuel Commission desires a rate for all rail transportation which will be on an average of 59 cents per ton in excess of the rate now existing from Central Pennsylvania and will assure New England industry and householders a permanent and adequate supply from the Pocahontas and New River districts of West Virginia.

CROWN PRINCE GUEST OF MRS. M'CORMICK

Chicago, June 24 (I.N.S.)—Gustavus Adolphus, Crown Prince of Sweden, and his Consort, Princess Louise, who are guests at the home of Vice-President Charles G. Dawes, today had lunch at the home of Mrs. Edith Rockfeller McCormick. Four hundred persons were present. The feature of the first day's program was the banquet last night at the new Palmer House at which were present 1,600 American friends of the Royal visitors.

TAXI DRIVER HURT IN COLLISION WITH AUTO

Russell Boyd, a taxi driver, of St. Mary street, Malden, was hurt today when his machine collided with a car operated by Helen R. Leary of Francis street, Melrose, as Boyd was driving into Savin street, from the Fellsway. At the Malden Hospital Boyd was found to have bruises of the back and sides and possibly internal injuries.

SCORNS HUBBY WHO SAVES HER

Westfield, June 24 (A.P.)—Mrs. Julius Peske, after a quarrel with her husband today, attempted to drown herself by jumping into a hole in Powder Mill Brook, but her husband, who suspected her intention, succeeded in dragging her to safety and reviving her.

The woman refused to accompany her husband home, and he was forced to get assistance. When neighbors came the woman was located in the woods by the family dog.

"HOLY CARPET" LEADS TO KILLING IN EGYPT

Cairo, Egypt, June 24 (A.P.).—Twenty-five persons, among them women, have been killed by Egyptian troops in the Wahibi village of Muna, near Mecca, says the newspaper Mokattam, because the villagers interfered with the soldiers, escorting Kiaja, or "Holy Carpet," to Mecca.

Their band was playing, and as music is strictly forbidden in holy places by the Koran, the Wahibis attempted to stop it. In the excitement the Egyptians fired upon the crowds.

Only as France makes her finest soaps could this soap be made

SKILLFUL, luxury-loving France!

France that sends us so many superior things for the toilet.

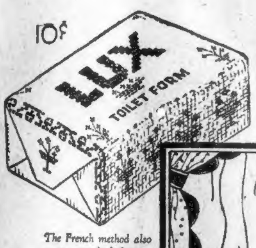
It was France that discovered and developed the method by which Lux Toilet Form is made!

That smooth, glossy surface of Lux Toilet Form—the minute you see it you know Lux Toilet Form is a true "savon de toilette." It is made just as France makes her finest toilet soap! Made quite differently from the white soaps you are used to.

Satin-smooth, fine-textured, firm, Lux Toilet Form lasts and lasts just as imported soap does. And such delicate, fresh fragrance—not too much—you know it is from a European perfume expert.

And that generous lather you have liked so in imported soaps—even where water is hard—Lux Toilet Form gives it to you! How often you've been tempted, in spite of their extreme prices, to buy French soap just for that same luxurious feeling Lux Toilet Form gives you—intangible, but very real! You do feel better groomed after Lux Toilet Form!

In its inviting lavender and white wrapper, sprigged and flowered like an old-time sampler, Lux Toilet Form is at your druggist's, your department store and your grocer's. Ten cent stores have it, too. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Massachusetts.



The French method also means ample lather no matter how hard the [illegible]

3 HUB 'AD' MEN HONORED AT CONVENTION

Three leading figures in advertising in Boston were honored at the morning session in Philadelphia today of the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

Frank A. Black.

M. R. O'Connell.

Maj. P. F. O'Keefe

Frank A. Black, publicity director for William Filene's Sons Co., was elected a member of the board of governors of the national body Associated Retail Advertisers. He has been a director heretofore.

Maurice R. O'Connell, advertising director of the Gilchrist Company, who has been advertising director of other Boston stores, was elected a director of the Associated Retail Advertisers.

"Major" P. F. O'Keefe of the P. F. O'Keefe Advertising Agency today led the Boston delegation of 400 to the statue of Benjamin Franklin, [illegible] on the grounds of the University of Pennsylvania, and in the presence of thousands laid a wreath of roses at its base.

"During the course of the sesquicentennial celebration, which centres world interest on the achievements of the great Americans who guided the nation to independence here in Philadelphia, we, as Bostonians, are proud and glad to honor the memory of the Boston boy, Benjamin Franklin, whose wise counsel so largely affected the destinies of the struggling colonies," said Major O'Keefe.

Major O'Keefe is chairman of the delegates from Boston and New [illegible]. Today he received word that he would be presented a gold [illegible] American Florists' Association two weeks hence at New Orleans as the advertising man contributing the most signal services to [illegible] during the last five years. O'Keefe originated the slogan [illegible] with flowers."

BANS MOTHER FROM DEATH CELL

John J. McLaughlin, one of the three young men condemned to die during the week of August 8 for the Waltham carbarn murder, has served notice that he will "go into exile" and deny himself to all visitors after he and John J. Devereaux and Edward J. Heinlein are transferred from East Cambridge Jail to the death house in State Prison, ten days before the execution.

Under this strange edict, McLaughlin's mother would be banned like all other relatives. John feels that such a plan would save him and them much anguish, but his mother and sisters are trying to induce him to abandon it.

Women sympathizers today continued circulating petitions which will be presented to Governor Fuller and Council seeking commutation of the death penalty to life imprisonment in the cases of all three prisoners. Independent petitions are being signed for Devereaux while the names of Heinlein and McLaughlin appear on the same petition.

In a recent letter to his widowed mother, John McLaughlin wrote:

"I was just thinking, Ma, here in my cell after coming from chapel, about the things I intend to do when I get over in State prison. Is I have told you all before, when I get there, and as soon as I can arrange it with the officials, I'm not going to allow anyone—not even you Mama—to to visit me. I will go into exile."

John signed twelve crosses after his name, symbolic of kisses. On "Mothers' Day" he wrote in part:

"Well, Mama, this is your day—Mothers' Day—and I send you my sincerest and very best wishes and trust to the mercy of our Lord and His 'Blessed Mother' that on this day next year you will be happier by having at least Pete home there with you."

BELIEVE FIFTY DEAD IN MEXICAN FLOOD

Mexico City, June 24 (I.N.S.).—Heavy loss of life is reported in floods that have swept Leon, in the State of Guanajuato. Estimates of the dead run as high as fifty.

The river Gomez has overflowed its banks and swept the lower sections of the city of Leon, where thousands of the poorer classes were driven from their beds last night. The victims are reported to be principally women and children.

HOUSE OF LORDS AGAIN VOTES DOWN PEERESSES

London, June 24 (A.P.).—The House of Lords today, for the third time, rejected the bill sponsored by Lord Astor, to permit Peeresses in their own right to sit in the upper House of Parliament. The vote against the bill was 125 to 80.

BABY SAVES GIRL WHO HAS THREE HUSBANDS

New York, June 24 (Universal)—Mrs. Rose Beach, who confessed that she had married three men without waiting for death or divorce to clear the path, is free after she appeared in court carrying her four-weeks-old baby.

Harold Beach, third husband and father of the child, smiled at the verdict. Ralph Costa, husband No. 2, shook her hand and said he would not have pressed the charge if he had known about the baby. Stephen Garber, husband No. 1, said:

"Great kid — sorry — wish you luck."

NO RELATIVES CLAIM ORR WAR MEMORIALS

War memorials awarded to the estate of Leslie Orr, a native of Boston, killed in action with the New Zealand Expeditionary Forces, were received today by Mayor Nichols from the State Department at Washington. Since every effort to locate relatives of Orr has failed, the memorials will be turned over to the Boston Public Library. Orr gave his birthplace as Boston. The war trophies consist of a British war medal, a Victory medal, two certificates and a plaque and scroll.

ADOPT FRENCH NAVAL PLAN

Geneva, June 24 (I.N.S.).—The naval sub-commission of the preparatory disarmament conference today voted to adopt the Franco-Italian thesis for comparison of naval strength. This thesis holds that the comparison should be on total tonnage. The United States delegation had maintained that the basis of comparison should be the tonnage of vessels of various classes.

The Franco-Italian thesis was adopted by a vote of 11 to 6. The United States view was supported by Great Britain, Chile, Spain, the Argentine and Japan.

The decision is regarded as one of the most vital yet taken.

Opponents declare that it would permit nations to build unlimited numbers of vessels of any one type, such as submarines, providing the total fixed tonnage is not exceeded.

Many experts hold that if this thesis is finally adopted and incorporated into an international treaty that it will practically wipe out the effects of the Washington treaty.

$18,000 Gems Stolen

CUPID FAILS IN BOSTON

Dan Cupid was a failure in Massachusetts during 1925.

His record for the year, compiled by Secretary of State Frederick W. Cook, reveals it the poorest, with but two exceptions, since 1870, the year in which these statistics were first compiled.

The total number of weddings for the twelve-month period was 31,238, a ratio of 15.1 per 1,000 population. The previous year the marriage total was 32,080, with a ratio of 16 per 1,000 population.

The two lowest years were 1878 and 1918 when the raito was but 14.9 and the highest, 20.1, was in 1907.

WALSH

Frank words are necessary

Twelve years ago I introduced the ARCH PRESERVER SHOE to Boston.

Because I STUDIED the human foot—and because the shoes themselves PROVED to thousands of men and women that the scientific construction did actually correct and prevent foot troubles, the WALSH ARCH PRESERVER SHOE SHOPS have been one of the outstanding successes of the past decade.

Imitations have sprung up. The arch-this and the arch-that are offered on every corner.

Be assured that the SIMILARITY ENDS WITH THE NAME. The scientific features in ARCH PRESERVER SHOES are patented and cannot be imitated under penalty of the law.

For your own sake, remember the exact name. Remember that women's ARCH PRESERVER SHOES are for sale in Boston ONLY at my two stores.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Boston Parties Aboard Yachts on Way to Harvard-Yale Crew Races

BOSTON YACHTS FLYING EASTERN Yacht Club colors are on the way to rendezvous at New London for tomorrow's gala college occasion, the annual races staged on the Thames between those old-time rivals, Harvard and Yale.

THE SCHOONERS ADVANCE and Constellation, two major ships of the Eastern's fleet, have already weighed anchor and sailed to the southward. Mrs. Lawrence and Vice-Commodore John S. Lawrence will entertain aboard during the races.

AFTER THE GALA DAY at New London the Advance makes a leisurely return to home waters, putting in at Newport en route and reaching Marblehead some time late next week, in time for some of the important Eastern racing.

NO RACE DAY AT NEW LONDON is quite complete to the old timers unless the Constellation, famous yacht of Herbert M. Sears, is at anchor in the river. She'll be there this year again, with a jolly party aboard.

MR. SEARS, WHO MAKES his home of summers aboard the Constellation, is taking her down to New London, and as always will entertain aboard in right royal fashion. The Sears brand of hospitality is a byword wherever yachtsmen foregather.

ALSO SAILING AWAY to New London and the races are the Charles L. Hardings of Dedham with their yacht Wildfire. The Hardings, with a summer home in Newport, sail back there from New London, directly after the races.

MISS BETTY SOULE

Acts as bridesmaid Saturday when Caroline Towle marries Henry J. Russell in Trinity Church. (Bachrach photo.)

THE ROBERT SALTONSTALL family, going down to see "Bill" Saltonstall row in the crew, already is on the wing. Miss Carolyn Saltonstall, a bud of last Winter, is a guest aboard the Robert Morse yacht and will see the races from its deck.

SALTONSTALL, PATER, is aboard the George Lewis yacht and already has set sail for New London and today other members of the family, Mrs. Saltonstall and their daughter, Miss Harriet, motor to New London for the spectacle.

MRS. FREDERICK O. BARTON of Fairfield street, mother of the Francis Lowell Barton, bow oar for the varsity, Porcellian host and 1926 man, goes down to New London to watch her son and his mates row for the Crimson.

SPEAKING OF THE LAWRENCES, two very jolly Harvard entertainments had them as hosts during the 1901 reunion. On Monday last, wives and children of the '01 men went on a long sail on the Advance.

ON TUESDAY MRS. LAWRENCE entertained some 400 guests (these for the most part wives and children) at luncheon at Gravelly Brook Farm, the comfortable old home of the Lawrences at Topsfield.

MISS CAROLINE TOWLE, bride-to-be in the Dr. Harvey Parker Towle household, of Marlborough street and West Harwich-on-the-Cape, entertained her bevy of bridal attendants at luncheon at the Algonquin Club.

THEY — the attendants — include girls who figure frequently in fashionable Boston nuptials; Miss Eleanor Gibson, Miss Eleanor Mason, Miss Helen Lovering, Miss Elizabeth Soule and Miss Helen Moseley.

MR. HENRY STURGIS RUSSELL, bridegroom in the pageant (it's to be a high noon in Trinity on Saturday), entertained his staff out at the Country Club some three weeks ago.

THE YOUNG MAN'S Boston kin figure in his staff. Edward L. Bigelow, Nelson Bigelow, Chandler Bigelow, Henry Atkinson and George T. Rice are cousins of Mr. Russell, whose mother, Mrs. Curtis Woolsey Cate, of Carpinteria, Cal., was formerly Mrs. Howland Russell (born Thayer).

A. F. OF L. IN 5-DAY EXECUTIVE SESSION

Cincinnati, June 24 (A.P.).—A five-day executive conference, from which trade unionists themselves were excluded unless summoned, was begun here today by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor.

The council includes William Green, president; Frank Morrison, secretary; Daniel J. Tobin, treasurer, and James Duncan, Frank Duffy, T. A. Rickert, Jacob Fisher, Mathew Woll, Martin F. Ryan, James A. Wilson and James P. Noenan, vice-presidents.

RAID ON TIA JUANA DEN NETS 62 CHINESE

Mexico City, June 24 (I.N.S.).—Sixty-two Chinese were arrested in a raid on an opium den at Tia Juana, according to word received here today from General Abeldaro S. Rodriguez, governor of the northern district of Lower California. The raiding officers seized a large quantity of opium, morphine and heroin.

Rodriguez recommended the Chinese be expelled as pernicious foreigners.

AUTO IS DRIVING CAMEL RIGHT OFF THE MAP

Washington, June 24 (A.P.)—Just as the horse has given way to the automobile in urban centres, so is the camel fading out of the picture in remote deserts to make room for the motor bus.

An idea of the extent to which American motor busses and trucks have invaded the far corners of the earth was contained in a report issued by the commerce department today showing that this modern method of transportation is in operation over the Arabian, Gobi and Sahara deserts. Passengers are being carried over the biblical route from Jerusalem to Jericho, to the Temple of Heaven in the sacred city of Pekin, to Rangoon, Mandalay, Cairo, Alexandria and Casa Blanca.

The motor bus in the Philippines was described as one of the outstanding agencies in civilizing the natives of isolated villages. The number operating in Asia, Africa and Oceania was estimated at 17,000.

CHEMISTS HERE IN SYMPOSIUM

The fourth national colloid symposium at Massachusetts Institute of Technology went into its second day today with a group of prominent scientists and chemists in attendance. Tomorrow will be the third and last day of the meeting.

The symposium is held under the auspices of the Institute of Technology in co-operation with the Northeastern section of the American Chemical Society. Sessions are held in the naval architecture building, Technology. Professor James W. McBain, University of Bristol, England, is the guest of honor.

Reading of scientific papers is scheduled to occupy the greater part of the day, with luncheon in the Walker Memorial Building.

A visit to the Pop Concert at Symphony Hall tonight will top off the program.

ENGLAND BARES SOVIET PLOT

London, June 24 (A.P.).—The British government today issued a blue book in which are revelations of the alleged activity of the Communist party in Great Britain and its relations with Moscow.

The blue book contains many letters from Communists to their agents in Great Britain. One letter, referring to a campaign in connection with the miners' movement and dated August, 1925, was addressed to Agitprov—the agitation and propaganda department of the Communist International.

Other letters referred to a successful campaign being conducted among soldiers, the formation of a Lenine school of activities in English factories and work among the police force in India as well as among the British working class.

"It is of immediate importance that the British workers be drawn into a fight against white terror capitalism," says one communication.

JAPS SOUGHT IN BREWSTER CASE

Glen Head, N. Y., June 24 (I.N.S.).—"Sidney E. Pre[illegible] killed his wife and then himself."

Such is the [illegible] opinion of District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards of Nassau County, expressed today after hearing reports from detectives and surgeons on the tragic deaths of the young society couple here.

"I believe that a sudden quarrel occurred shortly before 7 o'clock Tuesday night," Edwards said, "in the course of which Brewster made a motion as if to strike his wife. Astounded by this gesture, I imagine, she rushed to the telephone, told her mother that her husband was beating her, and came back to the bedroom.

"Then, I think, Brewster, in a rage that his wife had so made a spectacle of him, got his pistol and fired the two shots."

The authorities are determined to sift every angle of the case and are now searching for three Japanese servants of the young couple who were dismissed three weeks ago.

BACK PAY ORDER ANGERS VETERANS

Atlanta, Ga., June 24 (Universal)—Steps to compel the United States Veterans' Bureau to make the new rating schedule of compensation retroactive to June 7, 1924, were proposed today by Thomas Kirby, of Washington, D. C., chairman of the Rehabitation Committee, in an address to the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, in convention here.

The recommendation was adopted amid rousing cheers.

The order, making the new rating schedule effective as of January 1, 1926, was termed "one of the most jarring decisions since the World War." He urged that a mandamus suit be brought against the bureau to make the order retroactive.

BIGGEST FREIGHT SHIP FOR GREAT LAKES TRADE

Midland, Ont., June 24 (A.P.)—The Glenmhor, said to be the world's largest freight steamer, was launched in Georgian Bay from the yards of the Midland Shipbuilding Company. The steamer is 633 feet long, 29 feet draft, 70 feet in beam and has a carrying capacity of 15,000 tons. She is of steel and was built for the Great Lakes Transportation Company. Thousands of persons from all parts of the province witnessed the launching.

KAISER'S WIFE HITS GOSSIPERS IN ADVANCE

Berlin, June 24 (I.N.S.)—Princess Hermine, wife of the ex-Kaiser, has left Doorn for a few weeks' cure at Berchtesgaden, the Dutch climate having been very trying for her.

"I need a bit of mountain air," the Princess told the International News Service. "I suppose the gossipers will refresh their speculations about a divorce, but all such talk is silly rot. The Kaiser and I are most happy."

Mexico City, June 24.—Dr. Abdon Saavedra, Vice-President of Bolivia, paid a courtesy visit to Ambassador Sheffield at the American Embassy.

WORK IN PRISON GETS PARDON

Philadelphia, June 24 (A.P.).—The humane interests which three years as a convict awoke in Henry G. Brock, the Philadelphia banker and clubman, have won him freedom.

Brock, who was sentenced in April, 1923, to six to ten years after pleading guilty to killing three persons with his automobile, was pardoned by Governor Pinchot.

"In consideration of all the circumstances," said the board, "the time he has already served, his manly acceptance of the consequences of his act, the work he has done for prisoners and his purpose to continue this work, and the letters of recommendation from the district attorney and others, the board recommends that the application for pardon be granted."

Brock was a model prisoner and did much prison welfare work at his own expence. Among other things, he opened two shops where convicts were able to sell more than $46,000 worth of the products of their labor. This was said to have cost him $20,000.

Death for Rebels

Lisbon, June 24 (I.N.S.).—A decree published here today makes death the penalty for all persons convicted of espionage, sedition, rebellion, pillage or treason.

'Peaches' Is Given Cake and Jewels on 16th Birthday

New York, June 24 (A.P.).—"Peaches" Browning had her sixteenth birthday party.

The chief decoration was a gorgeous cake a yard thick, labeled as a gift from her husband, Edward W. Browning, to "the most luscious peach of them all."

She also wore four platinum bracelets studded with diamonds and boasted a check of an unrevealed amount, gifts from the same admirer.

The day ended in a dance at which the gallant husband remarked "I am so glad. I just don't know what I'm going to do next."

Radio Queries

Q.—P. J. S., Wollaston. Is the Freshman Masterpiece receiver a regenerative set? If not, why is it that I can hear squeals from one of them in the next house?

A.—The Freshman set is not regenerative, but if the radio frequency tubes are burned too brightly, it may cause the set to break into oscillation and radiate somewhat. This condition is usually remedied by shifting the tubes.

Q.—A. B. L., Dorchester. Can you tell me what type of broadcasting equipment is used by the following stations: WNAC, WEEI, WSSH and WBZ?

A.—WNAC and WEEI use Western Electric Company 500 watt transmitters, while WSSH uses a Western Electric 100 watt transmitter. The equipment at WBZ is manufactured by the Westinghouse Company, an entirely different concern from Western Electric, although frequently confused with it.

Q.—D. Mc. C., Watertown. I have an old Firth set, which was purchased in New York about four years ago. It seems to work quite well, but is very hard to stabilize. It has four tubes—a stage of radio, detector and two stages of audio. Can you suggest a good way of rebuilding this set in order to make it more up to date?

A.—The expression "up to date" with regard to radio, now refers to tone quality and simplicity of operation. With these things in mind, I am of the opinion that it would be quite hopeless to do anything with your set. You would do far better by either building or purchasing a new machine containing improved parts.

Q.—G. H. L., Revere. The other day I attempted to put a C battery in my five tube Freed Eiseman set. I followed the diagram you sent me as accurately as possible, but my set doesn't work at all now. I am sending a sketch of the wiring as I now have it.

A.—You have connected the C battery in series with the negative "A" wire to the filament circuits. This is incorrect. The filament circuit should not be changed in any way. Your C battery should connect between the common "low" end of each audio transformer secondary, and the point where these wires join the minus "A" bus.

A FINE COACH

Frank Brown, general manager of Oakland Motor Company, presenting Pontiac coach to Patrick Celata of Malden, who guessed number of miles it ran in 30-day test. Mrs. Celata is seated in the coach.

COACH GIVEN MALDEN MAN

Patrick Celata of No. 5 Oliver street, Malden, is a good guesser. As a result of his guessing ability he won a new Pontiac Six coach offered by the Oakland Motor Company of New England to the person making the most accurate guess of the number of miles traveled by a Pontiac sedan during a 30-day test run on a [illegible].

Celata guessed within half a mile of the correct figure, 5,123.5 miles. There were 6,894 guesses entered in the contest, but Celata's was the most correct.

MUSSOLINI GIRL MAY WED NEXT KING

Husband With Sleeping Sickness Not Her Kind

Story of a Boston Girl Who Liked Jazz Music and the Bright Lights

Helen gave a groan as she listened "Merciful Heaven," she cried weakly.

READ THIS FIRST

MERRY LOCKE, just twenty, falls in love with a MAN IN GRAY, whom she sees every day on Boylston street. To fall in love is nothing new to Merry. She has been doing it ever since she was sixteen. But this time she feels that she has found the One and Only person for her

She's sorry now that she let DERRICK JONES, a college boy and neighbor in Arlington, and others make love to her. MOMS had always told her and her three sisters not to kiss a man until they became engaged.

Merry has HELEN, oldest sister, still unmarried, and CASSIE, whose beau, MORLEY KAUFMAN, breaks engagements with her whenever he feels like it

One night Merry and JINNY, the youngest sister, go to the circus with Derrick Jones. They find themselves sitting next to the Man in Gray. He takes Merry home, and Merry lets him kiss her goodnight. The next day when they meet he tells Merry how much he cares for her, and that love at first sight is the only kind worth having, and then asks her to marry him. In a burst of confidence, Merry tells him that she's been in love before, and that it never lasted long. Disgusted, he takes her home, but later he comes to see her and asks her to marry him if she still cares about him in six months Merry says she will, but decides not to tell her family anything about him until they've had a chance to meet him.

The night when he is coming to call on her at home happens to be DAD'S and MOMS' wedding anniversary. Moms scolds him for spending too much money on gifts

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER IX

Copyrighted, Johnson Features, Inc.

DAD opened his mouth as if he had something to say. Then, on second thought, he shut it again. It was just as well not to argue with Moms when she was upset

Merry crossed the kitchen to him and put her arms around him as he sat down in the old rocker by the back window. He looked very old and tired and pathetic to her, all at once.

Moms gave the gifts on the table an angry little push

"It would be all right to give me things like those if we were millionaires," she sniffed, "but we aren't. And the money you spent on that truck would have paid my grocery bill"

Dad got up from his chair and patted her shoulders

"There, there, Sadie," he said, with a good-natured wink at Merry. "I promise never to give you another present as long as I live! Don't have a tantrum now and spoil our anniversary"

Moms held herself stiff as a poker for a second more, and then her face softened. She let Dad kiss her flushed cheeks

"I didn't mean to be snappy," she said with a sigh, "but sometimes I can't help wondering what would become of us if you got sick or died. We haven't a red cent in the bank, and even this house is mortgaged right up to the hilt" She sighed again—a deep sigh that seemed to come from the bottom of her lungs. "Sometimes I wonder if we can afford to keep Jinny in high school, even"

"Now, just you never worry! My ship's coming in one of these days, and everything will be fine," Dad answered her

Dad's "ship" had been coming in for as long as Merry could remember, and yet it never came. His salary was always too small for the needs of his family. There never was an extra dollar to tuck away in the bank. There was barely enough to keep the bills paid

"I wish Moms wouldn't scold you the way she does," Merry said to him as they went outside. "It's no fair—"

"Hush!" he stopped her. "You mustn't talk about your mother, Merry! She's a good woman—a wonderful woman. And what she said to me was all right. She knows how money slips through my fingers. It always has. No, you must never say things about your mother! We'd all be living in the poorhouse if it weren't for her"

Merry saw suddenly that he loved her mother because she was what she was. Because she was utterly unlike him—firm where he was soft and yielding, careful and thrifty where he was spendthrift and extravagant.

"I suppose that's why Tony cares

SHE WANTS MARRIAGE BROKEN

Wife of Former Army Officer McAlevy of Pawtucket Says That He Hid His Ailment

Trenton, N. J., June 24 (A.P.).—Chancellor Walker is not satisfied with the evidence in the suit brought by Mrs. Kathleen Drye McAlevy of Jersey City to annul her marriage to former Lieutenant Vincent McAlevy of Pawtucket, R. I., on the ground that he concealed from her the fact that he was the victim of sleeping sickness.

Before dismissing the petition the chancellor declared in an opinion today that he would afford counsel further opportunity to be heard.

"In such cases," said the chancellor, "the court represents the absent defendant to the extent at least of seeing that he is not [illegible] unless a proper case being made [illegible]"

The couple married in Jersey City [illegible] Shortly [illegible] the [illegible] At the end of a few months the wife [illegible] McAlevy [illegible] was later retired as unfit for [illegible] service.

LOBSTER SMACK TOWED TO PORT

After drifting helplessly with a broken propellor shaft for twenty four hours, the lobster smack Fannie Powell was found today by a Gloucester Coast Guard cutter off Thatchers Island while Coast Guard crews along the coast were conducting a widespread search

Captain L. J. LeBlanc and the three members of his crew were found in good health and the boat was towed to the Boston Lightship and then to her berth at Meridian street bridge

The hunt was started by owners of the boat when she failed to arrive when due. The vessel left Clark's Harbor, N. S., Tuesday, with 30,000 pounds of lobsters consigned to a Chelsea lobster concern.

MORE BRITISH LABOR TROUBLES PREDICTED

London, June 24 (A.P.)—Further labor troubles in Great Britain were forecast today when A. J. Cramp announced that the Railwaymen's union had asked for a conference with the railway managers.

"Serious trouble is coming on the railroads unless the companies cease their vindictive policy," said Cramp.

From BOSTON to BROADWAY

By GEORGE M. COHAN

CHAPTER XV.

I CERTAINLY made no hit with some persons in my first appearance with Gus Williams' show.

The following morning the Newark dramatic critic, after giving the piece a fairly good notice, spoke of me as follows

The fourth member of the Cohan family was programmed as George M. Who the "M" stands for was not revealed last evening. It was, however, the only one thing about his performance that reminded us at all of Midgely who appeared here in the same part last season.

For thirty-five of the longest weeks of my life we toured the country with "April Fool," and wherever we played, the set speech seemed to be, "What became of the fellow that played your part last season?" I listened to the singing of his praises from Bangor, Maine, to Kansas City

Even then as a seventeen-year-old trouper, I solemnly swore to myself that never again would I possibly side-step the issue and follow any man in a part he had created

I lived up to this promise for twenty-five years. In 1918, how-

It's located back of the house and there is no charge for admission

The Mayor donated the turtle which he found while motoring from Portland, while an ostrich egg—pride of Governess, the famous Franklin Park ostrich—was presented to the small curator by Deputy Park Commissioner W. P. Long.

'DUCE' SEES DAUGHTER A QUEEN

Premier Plots for Edda and Crown Prince Humbert to "Hit It Off"

London, June 24.—A move by Premier Mussolini to strengthen his hold on Italy through an alliance with the royal family is seen here today in the report that he desires his daughter, Edda, to marry Crown Prince Humbert

The report was contained in a dispatch [illegible] from [illegible] Benito Mussolini went to Florence a few days ago [illegible] his wife to [illegible] with the daughter, who is at a boarding school near Florence

Last year Edda Mussolini was awarded a silver medal by the Carnegie Institute for heroism in saving the life of a girl swimmer at Cattolica during a severe storm that swept the coast of the Adriatic Sea last August. The girl who was vacationing with her mother in the [illegible] rushed to the rescue of a girl friend who had been swept beyond the safety zone. Signora Mussolini, who was but fifteen years old, plunged into the sea and brought the other girl ashore.

The young woman, who is studying at the Institute of Poggio Imperiale, will offer no objections to her father's plan, according to those who know the family. Mussolini is supreme chief as well as father to the girl, and his iron hand is as much respected at home as outside.

Last October Edda telegraphed her father asking permission to accompany friends on a motor trip. No reply forthcoming, the girl was urged to go anyway but replied proudly:

"I am a disciplined Fascist. Without permission from my father I refuse to move."

A marriage between Prince Humbert and Edda Mussolini, a commoner, would not be unusual in monarchies and may have a bearing on the report last Winter that the premier had undergone a religious ceremony with his wife, Rachele, to whom he was previously joined only by a civil ceremony.

It was pointed out, however, that alliances had been contemplated for Prince Humbert with Princess Ileana of Rumania, Princess Marie Jose of Spain and Princess Marie of Belgium.

BOY SAYS HE KILLED GIRL, 10

Another Held for Crime Which Lad Admits and Then Denies

Worcester, June 24.—An 11-year-old boy today confessed to the accidental shooting of Rose Marchese, 10, for whose death Nicola Fiustaci of No. 24 Norfolk street is held, but shortly afterward retracted his story and offered an alibi

The confession was made before the continued hearing of Fiustaci who, according to police, had shot the child with a rifle at his home.

Ralph [illegible] eleven, of Norfolk street, confessed that he had fired the rifle accidentally at the Fiustaci home. Assistant District Attorney [illegible] Nelson Molt announced it at the opening of the hearing. Fiustaci was held in $10,000.

It was on the strength of a story of [illegible] five-year-old brother that Fiustaci was held. When the girl died less than twelve hours after the shooting, a charge of second degree murder was preferred. Fiustaci denies guilt, claiming that the trigger of the rifle was pulled accidentally by a child in the house

70 MILLION WAR PROFIT IN GRAIN

Washington, June 24 (I.N.S.)—Wartime fixing of grain prices by Secretary of Commerce Hoover was denounced today by Senator Reed (D.) of Missouri in a speech in the Senate, as the "most damnable outrage and the most infamous usurpation of authority ever perpetrated under the American flag."

At the end of the war, Reed [illegible] the Export Grain Corporation, through which all American wheat was exported at a fixed price, returned profits of $70,000,000.

"Every cent of this was a robbery from the farmer," Reed declared.

He characterized Hoover as an imported Britisher who had never lived in this country during his adult life until imported here.

DOG GAVE GIRL BITE FOR KISS

A Suffolk Superior court jury was asked today to decide whether Hazel Rosinger, blonde Chicago showgirl, is entitled to $1,000 for dog bites on the face which she received when attending a party at the home of Isadore Warshauer, Brookline.

She claimed a fox terrier owned by Warshauer sprang at her and bit her when she stooped to pick up a phonograph record from the floor. Scars resulting from the bites marred her beauty, she alleged. The defense claimed Miss Rosinger attempted to kiss the dog while it was sleeping, and that the animal became frightened.

'SAY IT AGAIN' IS NEW 'MET' BILL

Alyce Mills likes nothing better than making a picture with [illegible] Dix and Chester Conklin, who she appears with [illegible] "Say It Again" which comes to the Metropolitan next week. The former makes her "emote" better and the latter makes her laugh whenever she needs to.

Alyce Mills

Laughing naturally before the camera isn't the easiest thing in the world for most girls, and Miss Mills is no exception to the rule. But whenever she needed to laugh in "Say It Again," it was a simple matter. Chester would just wiggle his mustache or do some sort of [illegible] clowning and Alyce would quite naturally bubble over with laughter.

Miss Mills, be it known, takes the role of Crown Princess Ev[illegible] of Spezonia. She [illegible] about the same time Chester falls off the water wagon, and Richard falls into the throne.

CANADA ISSUES BOOK ON FISHING GROUNDS

There is a booklet published by the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, Canada, called "Fishing in Canada" which is one of the most interesting we've seen for a long time.

The early bird will get the worm, as we have only a limited supply. Send a two-cent stamp to the Boston Evening American Hotel & Travel Bureau, Room 551, No. 5 Winthrop Square, for your copy. Followers of Izaak Walton, don't pass this by. It's a beauty.

VERMONT IS GOLF COUNTRY

There's a country built for golf—and that's Vermont. On the long rolling green hills the pursuer of the white pill finds his Paradise.

What nicer vacation than to play on course after course round the Green Mountain range? Up to St. Albans and down to Brattleboro in the midst of some of the loveliest scenery in New England?

We have some interesting booklets listing the names of the golf clubs with length of course, number of holes, charge to visitors, etc.

There's a map of Vermont, too, showing the location of all the golf courses.

It's yours for a two-cent stamp. Address your letter to Boston American Hotel & Travel Bureau, Room 551, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston.

Runyon Says:

This Is Baseballville
Scranton Knows the Game
Sent Up Many Players
The Great Minooka Team
All Went to Majors

—By Damon Runyon—

(Copyright, 1926, by International Features Service.)

SCRANTON, Penn., and the region contiguous to Scranton has sent many baseball players to the big leagues in the past twenty-five years, as the citizens proudly reminded me when I was there for the Walker-Latzo fight.

Take the O'Neils of Minooka, which is hard by Scranton—Joyce who was called Mike, and his brothers, Jack, Steve and Jimmy. Mike around Scranton.

Damon Runyon

Mention of Mike's name re[illegible] to S[illegible] Mercer, the New York sports writ[illegible] and Jack constituted a famous "brother battery" with the St. Louis Cardinals years ago, Mike was a real good left handed pitcher, Jack a catcher. Mike is now an o[illegible] down in Texas. Jack is still [illegible] the matter [illegible] of the [illegible] hander's mind as demonstrated one day in St. Louis by a mental feat that I think worthy of repeating. I doubt that it could be duplicated by any man in baseball at the present time.

Mike was to pitch, and before the game he remarked to Mercer:

"I'll bet you a hat I can keep a [illegible] score in mind and give it to [illegible] after memory after the game."

MERCER says Mike won his bet. He went to the sports writer immediately after the pastime and [illegible]lled off every play of the game [illegible]st as it had been set down [illegible] official scorers. His only errors [illegible]eing on one or two questions of [illegible] hits which after all are entire[illegible] a matter of judgment.

Long after [illegible] the brother battery [illegible] Steve [illegible] catcher who came to be one of the best in the business. He was [illegible] a great catcher within the memory of the younger fans of the present day. He was a wonderf[illegible] [illegible] back of the bat in his prime [illegible] the Cleveland club.

Jimmy O'Neil of the same clan [illegible] a trial with Washington, if memory serves, and is now playing [illegible] in the Western league. He [illegible] great promise, but a lot of bad [illegible] in the way of injury.

HUGHY Jennings, for many years one of the foremost [illegible] in baseball, first as a player, [illegible] as manager of the Detroit [illegible], and finally as John J. McGraw's chief lieutenant, comes out [illegible] little town of Moosic just out[illegible] of Scranton.

A county commissioner in Scran[illegible] recently elected by a tremen[illegible] vote is Fineris Quinlan, who [illegible] an outfielder with the White [illegible] when the war came on. He [illegible] an arm and an eye in the [illegible] overseas, but he came [illegible] to win high honor among his [illegible] people.

Quinlan was a member of what [illegible] perhaps one of the greatest all town baseball clubs that ever existed. Nearly all of its players went to the big leagues. This was the Minooka team of some years ago.

IT included Steve and Jimmy O'Neill, Chick Shorten, who served with different clubs, Mike M[illegible], one of the most fortunate ball players the game has ever known, and Eddie Murphy of the Athletics.

Suzanne Lenglen Goes Down in Defeat

By F. A. WRAY
Staff Correspondent

Wimbledon, Eng., June 24 (I.N.S.)—Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen and Mlle. Vlasto met defeat today at the hands of the American combination, Miss Mary K. Browne and Miss Elizabeth Ryan, 3—6, [illegible] 7, 6—2.

The victory of the American pair gives a small measure of revenge for the defeats which Mlle. Lenglen has [illegible] administered to Miss Browne and Miss Ryan in the past.

The defeat came somewhat as a surprise, but there was no doubt [illegible] what it was a popular victory with the gallery which was still more or less incensed with Suzanne for her refusal to play yesterday.

Suzanne went to the courts today protesting that she was still indisposed, and she appeared to be suffering from a cold.

Official announcement was made that postponement of all other matches on today's schedule as a result of the showers [illegible] Mlle. Lenglen's singles contest with Miss Dewhurst.

The sensational uphill fight to victory by the American players after they had lost the first set was due partly to the good use of the [illegible] stroke. Every game developed stirring rallies with the Americans repeatedly coming from behind.

In the final set, Mlle. Lenglen ran into a lead of 40 [illegible] on her own service only to have Miss Browne and Miss Ryan tie the score. The French player later saved the game, but on the French star's second service the Californians broke through for an advantage which proved the turning point of the struggle. The puzzling [illegible] of the American team at this period of the match gave the French pair no end of trouble.

The defeat, which eliminated the French team in the first round of the tournament, was a bitter pill for Mlle. Lenglen, but she took it without any particular show of emotion. The American team was delighted over the victory.

The result was evidently popular with the large gallery which [illegible] keen disappointment [illegible] disapproval over Mlle. Lenglen's failure to appear for the match yesterday. Although spectators were impartial in applauding both sides [illegible] the play, the cheers [illegible] American victors echoed from the big stadium for fully five minutes.

The turning point of the match came in the second set, when the French women were leading seven games to six. Miss Ryan with her service squared the match after the game had gone to deuce seven times.

At this juncture Suzanne appeared tired and seemed to weaken. She turned over most of the work to Mlle. Vlasto and from that time forward it was an almost certain victory for the Americans.

Observation Ducats at $30

New London, Ct., June 24 (I.N.S.).—With bids for seats on the observation trains going begging, at $30 per bid, and the harbor filled with pleasure craft, Yale and Harvard oarsmen today marked time while awaiting the starting signal for their four-mile boat race on the Thames late tomorrow afternoon.

Yale continued to rule a slight favorite, but its coach, Ed Leader, was understood to have declared that Harvard was as good as its 1925 eight, and that statement just about expressed the general sentiment. The Harvard 1925 crew was no easy victim.

One of the closest races of recent years, in fact, was anticipated today among race followers.

TEDESCO PLANS TWO TENNIS TOURNEYS

By GEORGE GRIMM.

Chairman George A. Dill of the Tedesco Country Club, Swampscott, has come to the front with two very interesting tennis tournaments to be held on the eight clay courts of the club this season. The first of the tournaments will be a handicap event open to senior and junior members and associates of the Tedesco Club which starts on Saturday, June 26.

George Grimm

The Handicap Tennis Tournament will be in men's singles, men's doubles, women's singles, women's doubles and mixed doubles. Entries for this tournament close on June 25 at 6 o'clock and drawings will be posted at 9 a. m. the following day in the club house. First round matches must be completed on or before Monday, June 28.

Other contests must be played as soon thereafter as possible, so the finals may be played on July 5, weather permitting.

On July 24, the tennis committee, headed by Mr. Dill and the professional, Sydney Dufton, have arranged for the starting of the North Shore Tennis Championships. This sanction tournament of the United States Lawn Tennis Association of which the Tedesco Country Club is a member, has been very popular for a number of years.

W. G. A. INVITED TO WAVERLEY FOR TOURNEY

By BILL GRIMES.

[illegible] Allen, chairman of the golf committee, extended an invitation [illegible] tournament committee of the Women's Golf Association of Boston to hold their 1926 title tourney at the Belmont Spring Country Club.

The Waverley Club would be an ideal course for such a classic. The changes which went into effect this Spring have greatly improved Belmont Spring. The new seventh green should be in championship condition by the time the W. G. A. championships are played. This green is coming along very fast and [illegible]

There have been some complaints about this hole, when the back tee is played [illegible] the designer of the course [illegible] that it remain as it is at present until he can look it over. From the back tee it takes [illegible] to get home, and there are few of the regulars who are capable of being on in two.

The new fifteenth green and sixteenth tee have [illegible] the members [illegible] Waverley course this season. The fifteenth hole is now one of the best on the course. The green is visible from the tee and a hough [illegible] which formerly obstructed the view, has been cut away [illegible]

The new sixteenth tee and enlarged green have made a real golf [illegible]

The Belmont Spring Country Club is an ideal course for such players as Miss [illegible] of Braeburn, Miss Ruth Batchelder of Weston, Miss Olive B[illegible] of Concord, Miss Theresa W[illegible] of Weston and Mrs. Edward H. Baker, Jr., the former champion.

[illegible] the Oakley Country Club for the qualifying round of the three-day invitation tournament today. [illegible]

The [illegible] of yesterday has put the [illegible] in fine shape and [illegible] a fast field as well compete.

The Newton [illegible] Golf Association [illegible] hold their next tournament on Monday at the Albemarle Golf Club. This is the third season [illegible] West Newton [illegible] and as this course has always been [illegible]

MORGAN TO ENTER RING FAVORITE OVER HERMAN

CHAMP SET FOR BITTER RING DUEL

Fans Evince Interest in Showing of Johnny Hill, Filipino Battler

By JACK CONWAY

Jack Conway

WITH a little kind consideration from the weather man, Tod Morgan world's junior lightweight champion, and Babe Herman of California will settle the question of ring supremacy in a ten-round battle at the Cycle A. C. of Revere tonight.

This mill was originally booked for Tuesday night, but was postponed until tonight on account of unsettled weather conditions.

Morgan and Herman are in the best of condition and prepared to battle at a torrid clip.

This bout will mark the opening of the fistic season at the Revere Cycle track, which is expected to prove a popular rendezvous for the fans. With a number of improvements made at the track it is considered one of the best boxing plants in the country. Cinders and tan bark have been used to provide firm footing for the fans and this has tended to eliminate the mosquitos so prevalent in other years.

All that is needed to make tonight's affair a big success is good weather. Promoting bouts in the open air these days is a gigantic risk. Indoors Herman and Morgan would draw a record house and they will do this at Revere, too, if the weather is agreeable. The fans always make an 11th hour rush for open air shows as they refuse to tie up their money in case of postponements.

AFTER two extra days of training, both Herman and Morgan will step into the ring tonight firm in their purpose of winning by the K. O. route. And each is capable of doing it. Seldom do fans get a glimpse of two boys in the ring who carry such dangerous punches. Either can win by the knockout route if he can only get over the big punch.

Both Jim Jeffries and Jack Sharkey, who are great rooters for the Coast boxers, will occupy ringside seats tonight, as Herman and Morgan have been assisting the old-timers in their act at one of the local theatres. Morgan and Herman have acted as referees during the daily three-round bouts at the theatre.

IN the semi-final of ten rounds Hub fans will get a glimpse of another Filipino, who hails from the home of the late Pancho Villa, when Johnny Hill of Manila makes his debut. Hill, who has won forty out of forty-seven fights by the knockout route, meets Herman Kid Silvers of Ansonia, Ct. Silvers, too, with a victory over Jose Lombardo, is considered a classy featherweight.

Homer Robinson, former 175-pound amateur champion, clashes with Jack Elliott of England in a six-rounder. Elliott has won his last ten straight bouts. Robinson's last appearance here was against Pat McCarthy and it was a whirlwind fight.

Tom Lang of England mingles with Eddie Traynor of Dorchester in six rounds, and both of these boys are reported to be dangerous punchers, while Larry Brignolia will draw a big crowd from Cambridge to witness his bout against Frankie De Rosa of East Boston.

MEN NAMED ON ALL-AMERICAN SOCCER TEAM

STEVENS, N. BEDFORD HAMIL, BOSTON McNAB, BOSTON BALLANTYNE, McMILLAN, BLAIR, FALL RIVER

Bouts on Card at Revere Show

Tod Morgan, world's junior lightweight champion vs. Babe Herman, California, ten rounds.

Johnny Hill, Manila vs. Herman Kid Slivers, Ansonia, Ct., eight rounds.

Homer Robinson, Pittsburgh vs. Jack Elliott, England, six rounds.

Tom Lang, England vs. Eddie Traynor, Dorchester, six rounds.

Larry Brignolia, Cambridge vs. Frankie De Rosa, East Boston, six rounds.

Sharkey-Gorman Bout on Tap Tomorrow

The Jack Sharkey-Bud Gorman heavyweight bout has been postponed until tomorrow night, when it will be staged at Braves Field by the Suffolk A. A. When the contest, originally billed for last night, was prevented by the threatening weather conditions it was announced that the show would be held tonight.

The Boxing Commission then stepped into the picture and wisely ordered that the Sharkey-Gorman mill go back until tomorrow evening so as not to conflict with the Morgan-Herman battle at Revere this p. m.

The boxing game is never in any too healthy a condition and it would not help things if two Greater Boston clubs were to stage big shows on the same night.

Sharkey and Gorman will both engage in light workouts today so that they will be at the top of their form when they enter the ring at the Wigwam.

Knute Hansen, new heavyweight sensation, who clashes with the Honolulu Kid in the semi-final of eight rounds, is in town and confident he will come through with a victory. He says he will be battling Sharkey and Maloney in local rings by the Fall.

Mark Anthony of Roslindale, a rugged heavyweight, will make his pro. debut when he tackles Rocky Stone of Dorchester in another eight.

Tiger Flowers Due to Reach Hub Late Tonight for Bout With Neuman

Tiger Flowers, world champion middleweight, who is the greatest colored fighter in all time, will arrive in Boston tonight to finish his training for his bout with Ray Neuman, one of the three main bouts on the Crosscup-Pishon Post card scheduled at Braves Field, Monday night.

Since he signed for this bout with Neuman, one of the hardest he has ever signed for, he has been training with George Cook, Kid Alberts and Bert Laws and is in perfect condition to finish his work at Jim Roland's gym. He also will welcome any of the Crosscup-Pishon Post friends who desire to see him work out.

Both Flowers and Walk Miller, his manager, expect a tough match with Neuman, because he is the fellow who gave Young Stribling, Paul Berlenbach and Gene Tunney much trouble when he met them.

Red Chapman and Sammy Fuller, who meet Al Corbett and Carl Tremaine, respectively, are in perfect form after 10 days at an outdoor camp and they are confident their bouts will be the best on the card.

Patients from the World War Veterans' hospitals of Greater Boston are to be the guests of individuals who have purchased tickets to the boxing carnival.

Mrs. Robert Lincoln O'Brien of Dedham today accepted the chairmanship of the committee to take care of the men in hospitals wishing to attend the carnival.

The proceeds from the carnival are to be used for establishing a post headquarters from which the welfare and relief and other activities of Boston's hitherto homeless newspaper and advertising men's World War veteran group may be carried on.

About 300 patients are desirous of attending the bouts and 300 tickets can be helpfully distributed by Mrs. O'Brien's committee. Persons who wish to do double charitable duty—immediate to the veteran whose seat they pay for and indirectly to help the Crosscup-Pishon group carry out its general program—may send their donations to the National Union Bank Building, No. 209 Washington street, Boston, marked for the attention of Mrs. O'Brien of the American Legion Committee. Tickets are sold at $5, $3 and $2.

Coach O'Brien Is Honored

Athletic Coach Frederick J. O'Brien of East Boston High School, one of the most successful high school coaches in the history of the Boston School Department, was presented this morning with a beautiful gold pen and pencil set, the gift of the lettermen of the 1925-26 at the school.

Mr. O'Brien is also juvenal probation officer in the East Boston District Court, and the presentation was made by Captain Tripoli and Manager Kopaolsky of the track team in the courthouse.

For nine consecutive years the East Boston High track team has won championships, while in the other branches of sport the Noddle Islanders have been very successful.

NORWICH RACE MEETING ENDS TODAY

Norwich, Conn., June 24. This afternoon's feature at the Fair Grounds will be the free-for-all pace, in which Kate Hal, Guesswork, Baron Worthy, Ribbon Cane and Sir Roche will come together. The Boston mare Margaret Dillon will not take the word as she has been shipped to Avon, Conn., Trainer Billy Leese, stating that the mare did not fancy the rough footing that prevails here.

The 2:09 and 2:15 trotting classes will finish up program of the meeting. Marmaduke and Peter Buskirk will fight it out in the fast trot, while fourteen are scheduled to battle for the money in the 2:1[illegible] class, which will necessitate this event being raced in divisions.

Yesterday's three classes were all hard [illegible] contests. Tippe Vue proved best in the trot for three-year-olds, after some close finishes.

Bill McAuley Picks All-America Team

By BILL McAULEY

Picking All-America teams is getting to be a habit, in fact followers of the various sports are dissatisfied if their favorite newspaper fails to perform this thankless task, and knowing soccer fans as we do forces us to pick up enough courage to make our initial attempt at selecting an eleven which in our opinion comprises the best players in their respective positions during the entire campaign [illegible].

The team is composed entirely of American League players, as that circuit stands in a class by itself in the kicking game and is therefore the magnet for the leading stars.

The first selection will be the goaltender and for this position we are forced to consider two men from the same club, namely Blair and Kerr of the [illegible] champion Fall River team. We prefer Blair as he has the most [illegible] experience of the two.

For the right [illegible] berth McMillan of Boston stands out, McAuley of Providence being his nearest competitor and this young player has quite a lot to learn. McMillan of Brooklyn and Hunter of New Bedford are about on a par as fullbacks, but we give Hunter the preference due to his height, McMillan being the smallest defender in the circuit.

For right halfback we have two excellent men in McDonald of Bethlehem and McPherson of Fall River but we give the former the position due to his ability to dispose of the ball to better advantage than the latter.

For the centre half berth and also captain and field general Hamil of Boston is our selection.

The next position, that of left half, gives us more trouble than any other as there were no outstanding men in the position.

McGregor of Bethlehem, Coyle of Fall River and Ballantyne of Boston were the cream of an average lot, with the former having a slight edge.

For the outside right position McNab of Boston has no superior and the same may be said of Croft of Fall River at the inside berth.

Stevens of New Bedford is our choice for centre forward [illegible] position due to his winning the league leadership in goals scored [illegible] season.

[illegible] left Ballantyne of Boston gets the berth as we consider him the finest forward in the game.

For favorable mention we include the following players: Surgenor of Providence, Young of Boston, Martin of Fall River, Montgomery of New Bedford, [illegible] of Providence, McKenny of the New York Giants, Campbell of Fall River, Purvis of Bethlehem, Brown of New York, Sweeney of Coats and Fleming of Boston.

BUDGET HELPS FEED THE FAMILY

Boston Evening American Offers Aid to Housewives in Planning Expenditures of Income

BUDGET TALK NO. 84

By MARTHA LEE

"I HAVE $30 a week and five in the family. I cannot keep my food bills under $18 to $20," says a would-be budgeteer. She is just one of the thousands of New England housewives who are spending the major part of the family income on food.

The smaller the income the larger proportion must go for food, but $20 out of $30 leaves a big shortage [illegible] and personal [illegible] nothing of savings. When women consider the [illegible] of homekeeping as a profession and are willing to devote at least one hour a day to menu making, personal marketing and study of household economics, then we can confidently expect them to beat their food allowance of 25 per cent. of the total family income.

Now that hot weather is coming, it behooves the careful buyer to [illegible] her sense of smell for it is in warm weather that meats fish fruits and vegetables [illegible]

Milk requires the greatest care. Next comes fish. Press your finger on the fish and the impression will not remain if it is fresh. A pretty sure test is to ask your dealer to strip a bit of flesh from the back bone. If the fish is fresh some of the flesh will remain on the bone. [illegible] rub off and should be bright and gleaming. If the eyeballs are collapsed or gray or dull the fish is not fit for food.

In choosing meat look for that which is firm under the pressure of your finger and clearly shows the branching veins. The fat of beef or mutton should be a rich cream color and the flesh a deep rose. If the fat is [illegible] it shows the animal was old and will be tough.

If you are interested, I will send you an excellent recipe book showing the delicious dishes that can be made from too little known cuts.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

"Forever In Your Debt," writes, "For the first time in ages, I had my gas money and commutation ticket ready on time, due to trying to follow a budget given by you to a lady whose salary was similar to mine. Expenses are rent $4.50 weekly, gas $7.50 monthly, insurance $1.50 weekly, $2.50 weekly on back bill, laundry $1. Every other penny of $34 weekly income goes for food or clothing. Fortunately I can sew. Husband is delicate and needs good food and insists on same for children. Do you consider full life insurance savings?

Five in family and visitors for meals on an average of seven or eight a week. Have relatives in straightened circumstances.

A $34 standard budget would work out savings $3.50, shelter $7, including business carfares, food $10.50, clothing $4.50, operating $4.50, personal $4. You will have a surplus [illegible] which you can use where it is needed most, which is probably for food. Gas and laundry come out of operating, the payment on the back bill out of personal. Yes, full life insurance is termed savings.

If you will tell me your name and address I will be glad to send you recipe books which I think would prove helpful. I think you will have to shave off other allotments to give us at least $15 a week for food.

Mrs. B. U. B. has $40 a week to budget. Pays $50 rent and $4 a week for furniture. Would like to save something. I am sure you will have no difficulty, since there are only three in your family and you have a liberal income. Try shelter $12, including business carfares, food $15, clothing $5, operating $3, savings $6 and personal $3.

Mrs. A. D. has had many financial reverses. Out of an income of $34 a week pays weekly carfares $1.40, laundry $2.50, rent $6, food $3, ice 50 cents, telephone $1. Needs clothes and at present owes $1,000. Is alone in the world.

A hard problem, but not a hopeless one. A standard budget for $34. This would line up, savings $3, shelter $7.50 including carfares, food $8 including business lunches, clothing $5, operating, covering ice and laundry, and personal $3.50. Out of this you can pay $4.50 weekly on the old debt, I am sure, and you will have a further balance on the food allotment. I do hope this helps you and that you will write me again.

QUEEN'S COUNSEL

by Marie Queen of Roumania

"GRAPES FROM THORNS"

"BEWARE of false prophets which come to you in sheeps' clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves. Ye shall know them by their fruits. Do men gather grapes of thorns or figs of thistles? Even so, every good tree bringeth forth good fruit, but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit."

So says the Bible, and it is old, old advice—words that have been repeated so often, so often. Yet in this age of materialism run rampant, in this age of incredible scientific discovery, we need it anew.

In so many ways we have lost our simplicity, our childlike acceptance of creeds that satisfied our fathers! Science has made such stupendous strides that we fear being considered old-fashioned, "quaint," if we cling to the old religious "fairy tales" on which we were brought up.

We want more elbow room in our beliefs, more liberty of thought and action. And finally we try to persuade ourselves—because it is so comfortable—that sin is not sin. There is no heaven and no hell, according to the enlightened.

Here are the false prophets, ready with their facile teachings, to encourage "individualism," license, selfishness. "Do as you please," they cry. "Be yourself. Never mind the other fellow and his claims. Acknowledge but one master, and that Yourself."

Thus the false prophets.

But it is today as it was in the days of the Bible. Inwardly such prophets are ravening wolves, and you shall know the value of their preaching by its fruits. Fruits gathered from such sowing are inevitably bitter. Loneliness comes; friendlessness comes, and a realization of the bleakness and emptiness of life.

Within us all, always, is that longing for true spiritual values. "Sehnsucht" is the lovely German word for it—for something beyond ourselves, beyond this life, a realization of the real God, the only God who is the true source of all things.

To those of us who think straight through a problem to its end, it is clear that religion is compatible with science, as science is compatible with true religion. There is no science that does not, in the complete rounding of its splendid circle, return to God again as the ultimate answer to the inexplicable.

God cannot, will not, be left out. We meet Him at the end of every road, turn and circle as we will to avoid Him. The prophets we meet on these winding paths are false prophets, the fruit we gather but thorns and thistles.

Let us be wise and waste no precious time. True faith, true belief, true selfishness—these are the straight road to a spiritual home of peace and blessedness.

"Boston to Broadway," as Revealed by George M. Cohan Himself

[illegible] man's role in a comedy which I had written for the Cohan Theatre. But this time the laugh was not on me. The other fellow hopped out because he thought the plan was a failure and I jumped in to prove that it wasn't. I managed to save the situation [illegible]

I'd like to whisper a word to the reader right here.

"If at times I appear to be 'boosting' myself a little too much, I wish you would call my attention to the fact, because I wouldn't have you get the wrong [illegible] work."

"Oh [illegible] reader. "No apologies necessary."

"All right. If you feel that way [illegible] song."

[illegible] he spied me standing in front of the local opera house and came over to me and said: "I want to thank you, young fellow, for a very pleasant season."

"What kind of a speech is that?" I pretended not to "get" him, but I understood all right.

"Listen to me, Georgie," he went on. "If ever you're lucky enough to have your own show, take my tip and never have anybody but full-grown men in the cast."

That was the last time he spoke to [illegible] Knickerbocker Hotel in New York, where we played the scene all over again, much to the amusement of several friends of his, to whom he had introduced me.

When we closed with "April Fool" [illegible] town. This time it was at the Court Street Theatre.

At the Monday morning music rehearsal [illegible] cess as an eccentric dancer.

I had always done a dance in the fourth act, to the tune of "Coming Through the Rye." It was an old-fashioned essence of old Virginia dance. It had never taken especially well with the audiences, but it was necessary in order to give Josie a chance to make a change of costume.

I'd always claimed that the dance was all right but that the music killed it, so I asked the orchestra leader that morning if he could substitute some other tune [illegible]

"What kind of a dance is it?" he asked.

"An old-fashioned essence," I replied.

"I've got just the thing, but it's at home. I'll bring it around for the matinee."

[illegible]

When we got to the dance that afternoon the orchestra started up the new music. It was the weirdest melody I had ever heard, and [illegible] of rhythm was keen enough to make me immediately realize that the piece did not carry an even number of bars. The melody continued, but [illegible] I stood dead still in the centre of the stage, trying to figure out just why I couldn't do my essence steps to the music. It suddenly dawned on me that, instead of its being in six-eight time, to which I'd always done this particular dance, the thing they were playing was in two-four time.

Under ordinary circumstances, I should have stopped the orchestra [illegible] Through the Rye, but there were several theatrical friends of ours out front that afternoon, among them being Lucy Daly (now Mrs. Hap Ward of Ward hurst). She was of the famous Boston Daly family of dancers, and I was proud enough to want to prove to her that I could dance to anything ever composed.

A sudden idea came to me that usually I had to think very fast. Why not try some buck steps? I'd always used two-four melodies for bucking. No sooner thought of than done. I was into it [illegible] and besides, I was in a comedy "make-up." The tempo was very slow, so, in order to make the steps fit I had to drag them out more or less and so exaggerated the thing [illegible] leaping from one side of the stage to the other instead of sticking to the centre.

The melody suggested comedy, so I made every move as eccentrically as I could. I did a jump with the "scissors grinder" step, and threw my head back at the same time. It got a scream of laughter. I repeated this a moment later and got a second big laugh. Every time I threw my head back my hair (which I wore exceptionally long at that time) would fly up and then down over my face, and I'd brush it away and do another throw back and up and down the hair would go again. I faked a couple of funny walks to fit in the spots where I had to eliminate certain steps on account of the slow tempo, and each of the walks got hearty laughs and rounds of applause. I finished with an eccentric walking step, throwing my head back with the hair flying all over my face and made an exit with the end of the strain instead of ending with the old-fashioned "break."

The dance was a sensational hit. Lucy Daly came running back stage after the act and went into ecstasies over the thing.

"That's the greatest eccentric dance ever done on any stage," she declared. It was a golden opinion coming from her.

For twenty solid years I did this same dance to the same music, and this was the stunt which eventually not only revolutionized American buck dancing, but also set the "hoofers" to doing away with jig sand and letting their hair grow long enough to fall over their eyes.

The "Cohan style" they used to call it. But little did they guess that the thing was nothing more or less than an accident brought about by an orchestra playing a two-four melody instead of a six-eight.

Before the following season was over I had risen from the ranks of the ordinary "hoofers" and had become known as a great eccentric dancer. I've told this incident merely to prove that a certain element of luck creeps into almost every success, especially in the theatre world.

Continued Tomorrow.

The Making of a Husband, an Interesting Serial, By Ann Lisle

"THAT'S it," said Mme. Petruzzi eagerly. "The child was too frightened to sing when your husband brought her to me. I tried to calm her. Then I scolded her. She broke down at that and cried—and to make friends I gave her a little old picture of myself—the only one of the kind I had left. It was in bad shape. She said she would ask Mr. Nichols to fix it for her. Evidently he can use his hands—and his imagination—for what is written under the picture advertises him as well as—us," she finished with a [illegible]

"Are you still angry?" I asked.

"No, amused," she [illegible]

"That is good," I said, "for I hear a familiar hum approaching and that means that my husband is driving up the roadway [illegible] a while ago—and it wouldn't surprise me if it was Mr. Perry he dashed [illegible]

And that was perfectly [illegible] turned out, for inside of five minutes Jim was kissing Mme. Petruzzi's strong hand and was presenting Nicholas Perry to her. And Nicholas Perry cried [illegible]

"Was that a good stunt, Mme. Petruzzi?"

The stocky, sturdy, middle-aged woman eyed him [illegible] and shrewdly before she spoke. And her voice was restrained [illegible] critical as [illegible] with the New Englander much in evidence.

"Not good because it was not honest."

Nicholas Perry started and knit his brows.

"I hate to have you judge me so [illegible]," he protested.

"It might be well for you to get accustomed to judgment that is unbiased by a desire to save you [illegible] the [illegible] you need, Mme. Petruzzi said quietly.

Nicholas Perry winced. I have never seen him more taken aback than by his inability to move this grizzled, middle-aged woman with her deep-set little eyes, her sturdy figure and her capable hands.

"I shouldn't have done it?" he asked humbly.

"It was highly dishonorable," she replied inexorably. "What right have you to combine my photograph and a drawing of your model so they will be reproduced as one photograph? What right have you to steal my seal of approval for his child and to get yourself publicity [illegible] fastening your scheme to Diane Petruzzi?" she asked with quiet dignity and a pride that seemed entirely justified.

"None," said Nicholas Perry humbly. "But I was so thrilled to find I could use my hands a little again—could draw a bit. I was afraid I could never make another picture. Think how that thought must have hurt—think what it meant to you when your voice went."

The unconscious brutality of [illegible] made me gasp. It stopped Nicholas Perry. He looked at Madame Petruzzi pleadingly and then he buried his face in the hands that are just coming back to power and whose first task was a dishonorable one.

Mme. Petruzzi got up and went over to Nicholas Perry. She laid her hand on his bowed head.

"I know how it feels, caro," she said. "I am glad your hands are given their voice again. We are interested in the little Arlette. We will make the greatest lyric soprano of our day speak from her [illegible] throat—if we can get the [illegible] But can we get it? It will [illegible] two years with me—abroad. It will mean more years with the great teachers of Italy and Paris. It will mean more years of work. Ten years—her youth—and a fortune. Shall we strive to find the way?"

"Ten years!" gasped Jim. Was it fear that made his voice break so harshly?

Nicholas Perry turned and eyed Jim shrewdly before he asked Mme. Petruzzi in a colorless voice:

"You are sure it will take ten years to make a great singer of little Arlette?"

"All of that," she answered. "And a great deal of money."

There was silence for a moment or two in the living room of the Birches. Then Perry said thoughtfully:

"The money could be [illegible] somehow. But ten years—that is an eternity, eh, Harrison?"

"Will Arlette want to devote her youth to the task of learning to sing?" Jim asked thoughtfully. "After all it is for her to decide."

"She will do what she is told—now," said Nicholas Perry.

"I'm not so sure," laughed Jim.

Again I caught the note of a strange excitement in his voice. It was a little hysterical, a bit triumphant—but the word that seemed best to describe his mood was "calculating."

"He's counting the cost," I thought. "He doesn't know whether he wants to send the child where he will scarcely ever see her. If he is amusing himself he will vote against her going. If he cares deeply—enough to sacrifice himself for her welfare, he will want her to have her chance."

Again there was a tense silence and then Madame Petruzzi said:

"She sings naturally now—like a bird. But she has not culture—no knowledge of music—no understanding of herself. And she is afraid when she thinks she is being put to the test. She cannot decide for herself. Has she no guardian?"

I gave a start that seemed to me to be little short of guilty. Dr. Willis—Arlette's unacknowledged grandfather—had spoken of drawing up a will in which I would be named Arlette's guardian. Had he drawn it? If so, why didn't Nicholas Perry give some sign of knowing that the money for Arlette's education would be forthcoming without much trouble? Surely the doctor would be able to finance the girl now—surely he would be willing to do it now instead of waiting to leave her a dead man's blessing.

To be Continued Tomorrow.

Martha Lee's Pointers and Recipes

GREETINGS everybody!

Our homes [illegible] suburban [illegible] are usually at their best in early Summer and our natural pride tempts us to splurge in week-end guests. Entertaining is only a trial of the flesh, however, if it means that the hostess must spend most of her time in the kitchen or dashing madly from verandah to the range.

Let's consider ways and means of finding time to enjoy our guests. First, it's wise to do all ordering Friday morning. Be sure to include bottles of fruit syrup, gingerale and grape juice for cold drinks, prepared coffee and cocoa powders for quick, hot drinks.

Supplement fresh meats, fruits and vegetables with canned soups, bacon, chipped beef, relishes, catsup, raisins, shelled nuts, packaged crackers and fancy cakes. These with a liberal supply of eggs and butter will care for emergencies.

In planning menus, try to cook as much as possible in the oven at one time. A [illegible] steak, scalloped sweet potatoes and apples and marshmallow gingerbread can all be oven cooked at one time. With a grapefruit cocktail, lettuce and tomato salad and iced coffee, the meal is easily completed. All the cold things can be prepared the day before or after breakfast on "company" day.

Here are some recipes I know your company will enjoy.

Marshmallow gingerbread with whipped cream.—Take ⅓ cup shortening, ½ cup sugar, 2 eggs, ½ cup molasses, 1 cup sour cream, 2 cups flour, 1½ teaspoon [illegible] teaspoon ginger, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon salt, [illegible] mallows.

Cream shortening and [illegible] together. Add beaten eggs [illegible] molasses and mix well. Mix [illegible] flour, soda, ginger, [illegible] salt and add alternately [illegible] to egg mixture. Pour into greased shallow pan and bake [illegible] (360 degrees F.) 25 minutes. Remove from pan and split in two layers using two forks. Put marshmallows between and put back in oven just long enough to melt [illegible] (3 to 5 minutes). Serve hot with sweetened whipped cream.

Ham a la King—Take 3 [illegible] butter, 3 tablespoons [illegible], ¼ teaspoon salt, 1½ cups [illegible], ⅛ teaspoon pepper, [illegible] chopped mushrooms, 1½ cups cold ham, cut in cubes, 1 egg.

Melt 3 tablespoons butter, add flour, salt and pepper and mix well. Add milk slowly and bring to boiling point, stirring constantly. Fry mushrooms in remaining tablespoon butter about [illegible] minutes. Add mushrooms, ham and [illegible] to white sauce. Just before serving pour ham mixture [illegible] beaten egg yolk and mix well. Fold in stiffly beaten egg white and serve on rounds of pastry or toast or in patty shells.

Maitre d'hotel potatoes—Take 2 cups small potato balls, ¼ cup butter, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, salted water, salt, pepper, 1 tablespoon minced onion.

Cut out the balls with a vegetable ball cutter. Cook in salted boiling water for ten minutes or until tender, but not too long, or they will fall apart. [illegible] and pour over them the [illegible] butter, the parsley, minced onion and salt and pepper.

Faithfully,

Martha Lee

CHAPTER XXVI.

ANNIE COCHRAN declares that young Gordon has been in the habit of slipping out of the house at night; that he commenced to do it shortly after his arrival, and has done it ever since; that, indeed, he was not sitting on the kitchen steps before he was attacked, but had been out in the car, and was trying to get back into the house.

She also believes that Mr. Bethel suspects it, and has been on the alert especially since the night of the attack.

"There's been bad blood between them, ever since that night," she said. "They talk a bit when I'm in the dining room, but once I'm out of it, they're as glum as oysters."

She also suspects Mr. Bethel of being afraid of Gordon. On the nights when she assisted him upstairs, while the secretary was still invalided, she always heard him bolt his door as soon as he was inside.

"And the nights he stayed down," she added, "he had me bring down that revolver of his. He laid it to the fellow who got in by the gun room window, but I've got my own ideas about it."

Her reasons for not telling the detective are peculiarly feminine. He had antagonized her early by some high-handed method of his own, and "he was getting paid for finding things out. I wasn't."

But the other reason is curious, and shows a depth of loyalty to me which is unexpected and rather touching.

"I didn't see the use of dragging this place in," she says. "It's got a bad enough name already. And there's a lot of talk going on; some of it makes me sick."

From the way she avoided my eyes and rattled at her stove I am left to conjecture that my wood cutter—who by the way is missing today—has not passed unnoticed, and that possibly either Starr or Nylie has been talking. Probably Nylie. In any event, Annie Cochran, and very likely the entire vicinity, has evidently known that I have been under surveillance; a miserable thought, only relieved by Annie's loyalty.

"What makes you think he had been off the place, the night he was hurt?"

"He said he couldn't sleep, didn't he? And he got up and went downstairs to get something to eat, and then went outside."

"So he said."

Gordon Entangled

"Well, as far as I can make out, he was dressed from top to toe. He didn't need to do that to get down to the pantry."

And we had missed that! Hayward, Greenough and I had checked up that story, according to our several abilities, and had never noticed that discrepancy. "I sent his clothes to be cleaned the next day," she said, "and I noticed it then."

But her real contribution, if I may call it that, lay in the garage, and after tip-toeing to the hall and listening to the sound of Mr. Bethel's dictation from within, she drew me outside.

(Note: The small garage for the main house sits behind the kitchen, and not far from the kitchen door. There are two methods of access to it, one by the drive past the Lodge, which curves around the house, and the other by what we knew as "the lane," a dirt road leading through the woodland, which extends towards Robinson's Point, and which strikes the macadam highway further along.)

"So far as I know," she said, "that car's only been out twice since they came, and that was to take Thomas home one time, and me another, the night of the storm. But it's been out, just the same."

"Wouldn't the old man hear it?"

"He might and he mightn't. Suppose it was rolled along the lane and started? He wouldn't hear it there would he?"

To support her contention she showed me a number of marks in the lane, certainly suspicious, but by no means evidential. It is nothing unusual for motorists to strike into the woodland along the lane, under the impression that it is a public road, and to be brought up all standing at the house.

But against all this, at least as pointing to young Gordon as our possible criminal, is what is to me an insuperable obstacle. We know that the crimes are connected with the killing of the sheep. It is not possible to doubt this. And the sheep were killed and the altar built before Mr. Bethel brought Gordon into the neighborhood. Annie Cochran has a certain support for her contention, but not enough.

And she dislikes the boy extremely. Probably she unwittingly revealed the reason for her attack on him just before I left.

"There's something wrong about him," she said. "When a man's dishonest he thinks everybody else is."

Sees Cipher Expert

As Halliday went to town early today taking the scrap of paper with the cipher to an expert he knows there, I have not been able to discuss this new angle with him. Quite aside from the discrepancy in dates, however, Gordon not arriving until after the reign of terror was well under way, the chief stumbling block is the attack on the boy himself.

Suppose the body does slip out at night, and take the car? He is young, and I imagine pretty much a prisoner all day. He takes dictation all morning, types after luncheon while Mr. Bethel sleeps, and at four o'clock again is ready with his book and pencil. The few moments he has spent with Edith now and then are plainly stolen.

August 6th

Halliday's expert was not particularly helpful, I gather. We have this to our advantage, however, if advantage it be: the typing was done on a Remington machine.

As I had expected he does not take Annie Cochran's story very seriously, but he bases his scepticism rather on the beginning of the terror before the boy came, than on the attack on the boy himself.

"After all," he says, "how do we know that it wasn't the old man himself who knocked him out? I imagine he has considerable strength in that one arm of his."

"It's difficult, but I'll suppose it."

"Suppose the old chap heard him outside," he went on, "trying to get back into the house, and thought it was somebody else. The killer, we'll say. He'd be pretty well justified in banging him on the head with a poker."

"Granting he could have got there, which I doubt, how could he have tied him?"

"One point for you!" he said. "And one more theory hanged with its own rope. Still, you'll admit it's a nice idea to play with; Mr. Bethel kills a burglar with a poker, sees it is his secretary, rings the bell and calls help, and then gets up to his room and pretends to be asleep."

"It was Gordon who rang the bell."

"Oh, well, have it your own way!" he said disgustedly. "But it was a pretty theory while it lasted. And it's my opinion still that there is more in it than meets the eye."

Aside from this blind alley, up which Annie Cochran started us, we were all more nearly normal than we have been since the early days of the Summer. I rise, shave and bathe and go to my breakfast, no longer with the feeling that it may be, figuratively speaking, my last.

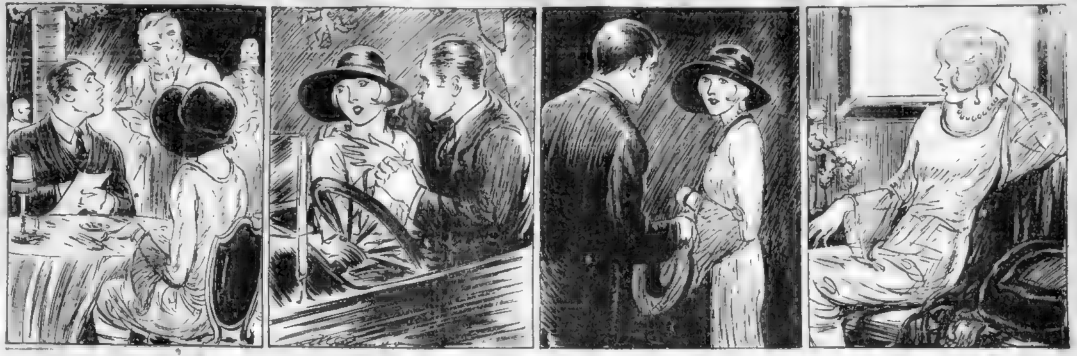
Thoughtless Petting Won't Bring True Love---By Beatrice Fairfa



He Took Me to Dinner

Then He Parked the Car to Pet

So He Took Me Home

And I Haven't Seen Him Since

By Beatrice Fairfax

Who occupies a unique position in the writing world as an authority on problems of love.

COUNTLESS letters reach me on the subject of petting.

"Dear Miss Fairfax," writes "A Reader," regarding her dilemma of petting or sacrificing popularity, "I am twenty-three years old. I have never gone any length of time with any one young man just because I do not approve of promiscuous petting and kissing. As the saying goes, they 'gave me the air.'

"All the girls in my old crowd are married and now I'm running with a younger set. They are between eighteen and nineteen and they all have 'steadies' or are engaged.

"A few months ago I met a very fine young lawyer. He took me to dinner several times and also to the theatre. Perhaps the seventh time the young man called he took me driving. He suggested a 'petting party.'

"I very nicely told him my views of the affair. He said that unless I changed my ideas I was on the straight road to being an old maid. This I really believe.

"I've gone about with men in every state of life—doctors, lawyers, brokers, merchants. They are all alike—they like the petting type."

Are you sure, dear "Reader," that these young men gave up going about with you just because you didn't pet with them? Regardless of petting, not every acquaintance can be expected to ripen into friendship, nor do all of our friendships prove congenial and lasting.

Perhaps they simply lost interest in you. Petting is often a last resort to ward off dullness. Many a girl dodges promiscuous petting by keeping the conversation so bright and interesting that lulls do not occur in which petting seems the only amusing way to pass the time. Other girls invite petting and kisses by their manner and conversation. In such cases they have only themselves to blame.

Girls who infatuate men through petting without first proving that the mutual interest is also mental and spiritual, may win husbands that way, but the chance for happiness and success of such a marriage is very slim.

for me," she thought dreamily, "because I'm so unlike him!"

At the very thought of him, a warm wave of happiness went over her. And he was coming, tonight. Coming to see her! In two hours he would be here!

She left her father and went into the house to take one last look at the old-fashioned parlor. She had been dusting it all afternoon, and trying to make it look more attractive.

But it was hopeless. As she stood in the doorway frowning at it, she wished that Tony were not coming. She didn't want him to see the old, shabby house. She didn't want him to meet Moms, who would be sure to ask him a thousand questions about himself—who his people were, and what he did for a living, and when he was born, and where he had gone to college.

Merry Dresses Up

"And then she'll go into the sitting-room and listen to everything we say, all evening!" Merry went on gloomily thinking.

She had told Tony that she would rather go riding in his car than sit around all evening. But he had stubbornly insisted that he wanted to meet her family.

Merry couldn't understand him. Most of the men who were in love with her liked to take her driving or to a theatre, where they could hold her hand in the dimness.

Or else they wanted to take her out to dinner, or some place where they could dance. That was Merry's idea of a pleasant evening, too. She had no taste for a talk-fest in the parlor, with Moms "listening in."

"But I suppose it can't be helped," she thought with a shrug. "Tony will have to know how poor we are sooner or later, anyway. And if he's going to marry me, he may as well get used to the idea of Moms as a mother-in-law, right now."

She ran upstairs and began to dress for the evening.

"Even if the house is shabby, I look all right," she said to herself, with satisfaction, as she stood in front of her mirror.

When she went down to supper she had on the best dress she owned. It was rose-color and it was made of rows and rows of organdy ruffling. Merry looked like a rose, herself, in it—and she knew it.

Cassie's green eyes opened wide, as she opened the door of the dining-room and took her seat at the table.

"Why are you all lit up like a moving picture show?" she asked, arching her penciled eyebrows.

"Cassie, I do wish you girls wouldn't use so much slang!" Moms said fretfully. "I suppose it's because you're around a lot of men all day that you do it. It doesn't seem ladylike to me."

Then she turned to Merry.

"Why have you put on that dress tonight?" she asked. "You know it's the only decent thing you own!"

Merry smiled her twinkling little smile. "I have a date tonight," she said and no one could miss the note of happiness in her voice.

"Do you mean an engagement?" Moms asked, frowning.

Merry nodded.

"Well, there's no need of dressing like that for it," her mother said severely. "Derrick has seen you in your old clothes often enough! You go right upstairs and get back into your blue linen."

Merry's lips and eyes went up at the corners.

"It's not Derrick tonight," she said with the air of letting them all in on a delicious secret. "It's Somebody Else!"

She looked straight across the table at Cassie, and her soft green eyes met Cassie's hard ones.

"It's your friend, Anthony Gaines, who's coming to see me!" she said.

Cassie jumped as if Merry had flung a bomb down on the table in front of her. She clapped her napkin to her mouth, and stared hard at Merry from above, for a full minute before she spoke.

Then she didn't speak to Merry, but to Moms.

"Did you hear what she said?" she asked.

Moms nodded mildly. "Yes I heard what she said," she answered. "She said some friend of yours was coming to see her. What of it?"

"What of it?" groaned Cassie. "Don't you remember about Mr. Gaines? He's the man Merry flirted with at the circus the other night."

Moms did remember then, and her face tightened.

"I did not flirt with him!" Merry said, almost at a shout. "He rescued me when I fell. I did not flirt with him, did I, Jinny?"

Jinny shook her head.

"You certainly did not, Merry," she answered firmly. Jinny and Merry stood by each other, through thick and thin. Both of them felt that Cassie, with her locked door, was their enemy.

"All that's the matter with you is that you're jealous!" Merry said to Cassie. "You're peeved because Morley Kaufman broke a date with you last night! You're peeved because I can get any man I want, and you can't!"

Cassie flushed and went on eating.

Tony Doesn't Come

But presently she spoke again.

"Mother," she began, "I don't think you ought to let this Mr. Gaines come to see Merry. She's never met him properly—he just picked her up in a circus tent. What will he think of us, letting him come here when we don't even know him?"

"You know him!" Merry blazed out at her, "and he wants to meet Moms and Dad. He said so. That's why he's coming here tonight."

That settled the question. If Tony Gaines wanted to meet her and Dad, Moms was sure that he was the right kind of young man for Merry.

As soon as supper was over, she went upstairs and put on the black silk dress that she had worn to church every Sunday for the last three years. She curled her black hair and did it high on her head, and borrowed a little of Cassie's French perfume for her handkerchief.

And then—Tony Gaines didn't come!

He telephoned Merry at eight o'clock to tell her that he was leaving suddenly to go out of town for his law firm, and didn't know when he'd be back to town.

"He probably didn't have to go out of town at all," said Cassie, when she heard the news. "He's probably been thinking things over—and making up his mind not to get in too deep with Merry. A man isn't going to take a girl that he picks up in a circus tent very seriously! Ten to one, Merry will never hear from him again."

Merry paid no attention to what she said.

That is, not at first. But as two days went by and then three days—she began to wonder if Cassie had been right.

Perhaps Tony Gaines had made up his mind that he didn't care for her after all! Perhaps he did think that she was cheap and common because she had tried to flirt with him on the street. Because she had let him "pick her up" at a circus, and kiss her an hour afterward.

The whole thing began to seem as fantastic and unreal as a dream to her, as time went on.

After all, she had been with him only three times. She barely knew him, she told herself. And he barely knew her.

But even while she was telling herself so, she knew that he meant more to her than anyone else on earth. It wasn't how long you had known a person that mattered. It was how well you knew him, and how much you loved him that counted.

The three days she had known Tony Gaines meant more than all the rest of her twenty years to Merry. She had told him more about herself than anyone else would ever know about her. But as she looked back upon it, it seemed to her that she hadn't begun to tell him how she felt about him—how much he meant to her.

"If he doesn't telephone me tomorrow, I'll call him up, myself," she told herself every night. But when the next day came, she didn't do it.

She had always been so popular that she had never had to call up her men friends. "I won't begin now!" she would finally make up her mind.

Every time the telephone rang she rushed to answer it, hoping wildly that she would hear Anthony Gaines' voice at the other end of the wire. It [illegible] was always Morley Kaufman asking for Cassie or Mrs. Johns asking for Moms.

Then one afternoon when she and Jinny were playing [illegible] the piano, the teleph[illegible]ly. Before Merry ha[illegible] it Helen had put the [illegible] ear.

Fashions and Fancies

By Mildred Ash

PUT Through the Third Degree—Leather fashions are sentenced to appear in sets of three, wherein shoes, purses and the trimmings on felt sports hats must match. Alligator, lizard or boa skin shoes are not completely smart unless matched by purse and hat band.

A Streak of Lightning seems to have struck the purse and shoe fashions, for flashing lightning zigzags of vividly contrasting leather are the smartest trims for the one-strap pumps and the bags that match them. Open shank, spike-heel, single strap sandals of patent leather or kidskin are also shown with triangular and other geometric designs appliqued upon them.

The High Water Mark doesn't yet seem to have been reached, for the tide of fashion is carrying skirt lengths higher and higher. Despite predictions to the contrary Paris is drawing the hem nearer and nearer to the knee—thus, further and further from the ankle where [illegible]like" styles used to place it.

The Swan Song—is always supposed to be the sweetest at the very end of the swan's life, but the burden of this song is to introduce a brand new swan, "swan silk," that was just born this season and is so named because it cannot be spotted by water. Costume slips of "swan silk" will be the most practical foundation for the chiffon and organdy frocks of the coming season.

DAILY SHORT STORY

TAKE THE CASE

Maria C. Lutterell

MARIE had invited the three of them into a drug store to get a drink. Later, opening her purse to pay the [illegible] the 20 or 30 cents she owed, she [illegible] and extended an empty bag. "I've spent everything I had. Josephine, my dear, will you help me [illegible] until we meet again?"

Josephine McDonald colored a little. "I'm [illegible] sorry, but I have no change with me."

The other two women had their purses open [illegible] and were throwing bills toward Marie. Josephine saw Marie look significantly at Lou Manning. The color in her face deepened at that. Her friends were well aware of her plight since she had married Tom McDonald. She rode about in her own limousine. Had charge accounts in all the shops, but she never, never had any cash. Everything about the housekeeping was charged too. Ice, milk, laundry—Tom paid by check. When she remonstrated with him about it, they invariably had a quarrel during which he reminded her how fortunate she was to be married to a man who gave her diamonds, furs, Paris clothes, a handsome car of her own.

On these occasions, she tried desperately to make him see things from her standpoint. She wanted a little spending money. She explained to him that she would like to pay her own household bills, pay her own servants—he even did that, regularly, every Saturday morning, before he went to the office. When she was solicited for charities, she had to refer everyone to her husband. Often enough she found herself criticised for being stingy. Stingy—when she so longed to make others happy with gifts. One of the thrills of her engagement had been when she [illegible] the pleasure she would experience by giving out of the coffers when Tom's business kept [illegible].

She had been his stenographer, earning $[illegible] per [illegible]. Out of that she had lived, dressed modestly, paid church dues and, in addition to saving a bit for a rainy day, had managed to buy charming little gifts and scraps of silk and lace which her skillful fingers fashioned into pretty, useful things.

Tom had always quarrelled with her about bills. They had to be itemized and whenever she bought a book or anything which did not tend to beautify her lovely body, he invariably had something unpleasant to say about the purchase. Once she had bought a baby cap for one of her intimate friends. And he had asked her rather sarcastically, just how soon he could expect an heir. Josephine could never forget that! Something fine, something beautiful in her regard for Tom began to die then.

She drove her three friends to their homes, and then went on to her own luxurious one. Riding in a limousine—without a cent in her handsome, monogrammed bag. What a situation! What a real cause for unhappiness! Tom paid all of her bills. She found herself longing for the old days when she drew one hundred and fifty, cash. It had been hers, to do with as she pleased. True, Tom allowed her to charge clothes and household necessities everywhere, but when the bills came in he always spoiled the joy of the gift by quarreling at the cost. When she repeatedly asked him to put her on an allowance so that she would know how much to spend, he roared that she was his wife, not an employe to be given set sums. Buy whatever she needed, he told her. No more. No less. He would often grin at that stage of the quarrel and say, "You know I want you to be swanky looking so that chaps will look at you admiringly and say, 'There goes Tom McDonald's wife. Gee, she's a stunner!'"

Josephine dressed herself carefully for dinner that night. She always did that. She knew that much was expected of her. She felt that she had to be attractive looking, that, after all, Tom regarded her as an amusing toy; a picture, framed to suit his taste, also to display to the world his high financial rating.

Josephine would have preferred to have worn plainer, less expensive clothes and have been able to pay for them without hearing him quarrel, even though she was well aware that he took boundless pride in her appearance.

When he came home that night he was in a bad humor and even her beauty in the lovely, soft apple green taffeta frock with only a string of exquisite pearls for adornment failed to placate him. "Another damn bazaar for something or other tonight of course, we'll have to look in on it. Money! Money! Everywhere I turn. As if it were not enough to have you take it all away from me without every other Jane turning bandit as well!"

Slow consuming rage burned in Josephine. Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde! That expressed Tom perfectly. One hour dropping a diamond bracelet in her lap—the next, quarrelling over a bill for a $15 hat. Whatever he chose to buy was one thing, but for her to spend a cent—that was quite another matter.

She determined to leave him. There would be no apparent anger. She would not stoop to quarrel again. She would go with him to the bazaar and the following morning when he left for the office she would pack only the plainest clothes she possessed and go back to a little room in the Y. W. It would no doubt be shabby. Cretonne drapes could not compare favorably with softest silks and satins. But she would be free again. Independent. Able to call her soul her own. Likewise, the salary she would once more be able to earn. Likewise, if she wanted a ten-cent soda she would not have to deny herself or be compelled to say, blushingly, "Please charge it!"

"Well, are you going to sit there all night and moon around or get your coat and start to that damned hold-up? The sooner we go, the sooner we'll be back, with the junk these society affairs hand you for good, cold cash," announced Tom peevishly.

Upstairs in their room, as she dusted a bit of powder on her face, Josephine suddenly saw Tom's wallet, lying on the dresser. When he had hurriedly changed before dinner he had forgotten to put the roll of bills in his dress clothes. She selected a beaded evening bag, large enough to hold the money. Smiling a little at the plan that had popped into her head, Josephine dropped the roll into her bag.

In the beautifully decorated room where the bazaar was held Tom, all smiles for everyone, proudly holding Josephine by the arm, escorted her to a booth piled high with lovely pillows. Taffeta, satin, cretonne, lace ones and fluffy boudoir pillows of organdie, dainty as many petalled flowers. He generously selected a dozen of them. Reached into his hip pocket for his wallet. With a rather blank expression which no one but Josephine noticed, Tom began to feel in every porcket. When he realized the search was hopeless he turned laughingly to Josephine.

"I'll have to ask you for a loan—I've misplaced my purse," he said easily. At that very moment Marie and Lou Manning, with whom Josephine had been that day in the drug store, stepped up to them.

"Don't try to pull that fake stuff before me, Mr. Stingy," dared Marie, glancing at Lou Manning meaningly. "Your wife never has any money. You're apparently one of those cave men who handle not only the big stick, but all the cash as well. Now, my husband is a sport. He divides with me. Allow me!" She opened her gold mesh bag.

"No, thanks," said Tom quickly, scowling. "I'll get a check somewhere around here."

For just a second Josephine hesitated. Then she held out her own beaded bag to Tom. "Marie's just teasing you," she said proudly for the benefit of the two or three people who stood there. "You can take all you need out of the family roll."

A look of surprise and relief spread over his face as his fingers affectionately closed upon his own sheaf of bills. He looked loftily at Marie with a sort of cock of the walk air and man-like, he got away with it.

Josephine did not leave him as she had expected and planned to do. She had no need to go. They buried the family skeleton that night. "You ought to have your own money," he said, waving back the bills she handed to him out of her beaded bag. "You were jolly well fixed to embarrass me tonight if you had wanted to do it. A chap certainly has a gone feeling when he has no cash. Believe me! By the way," he put an arm tenderly around her, "how about a thousand a month for yourself? Can you manage on that?" He kissed her warmly. "You're a darn good wife, I'll tell the world. A thousand a month do you?"

Josephine considered for a second. "To misquote Omar," she said, answer. "I'll take the cash and let the credit go, nor heed the distant rumble of the first day of the month."

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

GOVERNMENT reports show that the American people spent forty-seven million dollars for chewing gum last year. Hereafter the United States will be known as the wide open faces.

THE report can't be denied as there are statistics under every theatre seat.

THE amount of gum sold is enough to take our breath away.

ONE little stick can cover up a multitude of garlic.

EVERY time a vegetable man sells an onion somebody buys a package of gum.

THE big chicle manufacturer claims that he has his name on the tip of everybody's tongue.

IF people ever kept their mouths shut he'd go into bankruptcy.

HE'S afraid that an epidemic of lock-jaw will come along some time and ruin him.

GUM is a wonderful invention. Anybody can run it under their own power.

CHEWING is something that a man has to do for himself.

NO matter how rich he is, he can't hire anybody to help him.

ONE fellow had a speedometer put on his chin. He discovered that his jaws traveled fifty miles a day.

NEXT year we can look for some startling developments in the chicle business. When we finish with a piece of gum, instead of throwing it away, we'll be able to send it back to the factory and have it vulcanized.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS---

By Helen Rowland

SO to, my Daughter. What doth an house full of hand-painted ashtrays profit a man if there be no potted fern, wherein to drop his ashes, no waste-basket wherein to throw lighted matches and no mahogany piano whereon to leave his burning cigarette?

What do all the viands of imported chefs delight his palate, if there be no dish among them which his wife has told him is BAD for him?

What availeth it any man though he possess all the wealth of Tuankhamen and have no woman nigh with whom to argue concerning the saving or the spending thereof?

What doth it gladden a man though all the world fall down before his wisdom, if his own wife will not permit him to "tell her how to do things?"

What doth it delight him though he possess all the beauty of Adonis and all the charms of Narcissus, if two women be not breaking their hearts with jealousy over him?

What doth it signify though he have the freedom of all the world wherein to roam in search of diversion, if no WOMAN careth when he returneth or whether he goeth nor waiteth up to admonish him?

What doth all the devotion of a woman's heart delight him, if there be no "other woman," wherewith to flirt and to torment her?

What comfort doth a bachelor find in a soft collar and an old hat and an unshaven chin? What joy hath he, in throwing his clothes upon the floor? For, alas, he hath no woman to blush for him nor to wait upon him nor to urge him to be tidy!

Go to. What does any sin or any folly or any diversion avail a man, if no woman hath forbidden it?

Better a stalled ox and a woman to quarrel with thereover than a dinner of herbs, eaten in peace and quiet.

Yea, even as a small boy pulleth the hair of the little girl whom he fancieth, so doth a grown man seek devious ways to torment the woman he loveth.

For, verily, verily, no man is content unless some woman is worrying over him, waiting on him, fighting with him, suffering over him or working for him!

This Great Healing Oil Must Banish Eczema and Skin Troubles

Or Your Money Back

That's the Plan On Which Moone's Emerald Oil Is Sold by All Druggists to All Who Buy It for Any Skin Trouble Whatever.

Make up your mind today that you are going to give your skin a real chance to get well.

Never mind what caused it—you've probably been, like a lot of other people, convinced that the only thing to use was an ointment or salve (some of them are very good) but in the big majority of cases these sticky salves simply clog the pores and the condition primarily remains the same.

Go to any good druggist today and get an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil.

The very first application will give you relief and a few short treatments will thoroughly convince you that by sticking faithfully to it for a short while your skin troubles will be a thing of the past.

Don't expect a single bottle to do it all at once but one bottle we know will show you, beyond all question that you have at last discovered the one and only sure way to restore your skin to perfect health.

Remember that Moone's Emerald Oil is a clean, powerful, penetrating Antiseptic Oil that does not stain or leave a greasy residue and that it must give complete satisfaction or your money cheerfully refunded.

FOR Acid Stomach PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

BETTER THAN SODA

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

TRY A 25c BOTTLE

Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drug store.

United States of Brazil
6½% External Sinking Fund Gold Bonds of 1926

To be dated April 1, 1926 — Due October 1, 1957

Part of these bonds have been withdrawn for sale simultaneously in Europe by Messrs. Mendelssohn & Co., Amsterdam, Nederlandsche Handel Maatschappij, Pierson & Co., R. Mees & Zoonen, Amsterdam, Skandinaviska Kreditaktiebolaget, Stockholms Enskilda Bank, and others

Authorized and to be presently outstanding $60,000,000. Interest payable April 1 and October 1. Coupon bonds in denominations of $1,000 and $500, registerable as to principal only. Principal and interest payable in United States gold coin of the present standard of weight and fineness in New York City at the office of Dillon, Read & Co. or; at the holder's option, in London in Sterling at par of exchange at the office of Messrs. N. M. Rothschild & Sons, free of all Brazilian taxes, present or future. Non-callable except for the Sinking Fund. The National City Bank of New York, Countersigning Agent.

The total issue is redeemable by maturity through the operation of an accumulative sinking fund which will call bonds by lot, semi-annually, for redemption at par and accrued interest

The Brazilian Government has agreed to make application in due course to list these bonds on the New York Stock Exchange

The following information is contained in a statement furnished by His Excellency Dr. Annibal Freire, Minister of Finance:

These bonds will be the direct obligation of the United States of Brazil, and are issued under authority of Law No. 4625 of December 31, 1922, and Law No. 4984 of December 31, 1925. The total issue of bonds will be specifically secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a first charge on the receipts of the Government from Income Taxes and Taxes on Invoices (Contas Assignadas Duplicatas), by a charge on the Consumption Taxes subject to the charge of the 8% Loan of 1921, and by a charge on Import Duties subject to the charges of the 5% Sterling Loans of 1898 and 1914 and the 8% Loan of 1921. The total revenue derived by the Government from the above sources in 1924 was $117,000,000, and in 1925 $148,373,000. After deducting the indicated prior charges upon a portion of this revenue, which amount to approximately $11,798,400 per annum, there would have remained from the above sources in 1925 the sum of $136,574,600. The service of the issue of $60,000,000 bonds for both interest and sinking fund calls for $4,500,000 per annum.

SINKING FUND

An accumulative sinking fund of 1% per annum, payable semi-annually, will be applied to the redemption of bonds by call by lot at par and accrued interest. The sinking fund will be increased by amounts equal to interest on bonds previously redeemed. This sinking fund is calculated to retire all of the bonds of this issue by maturity.

NATIONAL DEBT

The national funded debt of Brazil on December 31, 1925, was approximately $936,000,000, of which $626,000,000 was external. This represents a per capita debt of approximately $30, as against which the per capita national wealth is estimated at approximately $530. The Government has undertaken to resume in 1927 the sinking funds, on certain Sterling Loans, which have been in suspense under the terms of the Funding Agreement of 1914. The proceeds of the bonds are to be applied in reduction of Treasury obligations including floating debt.

(All conversions of paper milreis into dollars in the above circular are at the rate of 14.50 cents per milreis. Other conversions are at par)

The statements quoted above, received partly by cable, have been accepted by us as accurate but are in no event to be construed as representation by us.

We offer these bonds for delivery when, as and if issued and accepted by us and subject to the approval of all legal matters by our counsel, Messrs. Cotton & Franklin, New York, and Dr. Alfredo Bernardes da Silva, of Rio de Janeiro. It is expected that Temporary Bonds, or Interim Receipts of Dillon, Read & Co., will be ready for delivery on or about July 8, 1926.

DILLON, READ JOIN IN $60,000,000 STEEL PLAN

New York, June 24 (A.P.)—A $60,000,000 financing oeration to complete the merger of Germany's leading steel companies into the United Steel Works Corporation will be handled jointly by American and German interests next week, it was learned today.

Dillon, Read & Co. of New York will share equally in the business with the "Big D" banks of Germany, and simultaneous offerings of $30,000,000 bond issues, of both dollar and marks denominations, will be made in this country and in Europe. Details of the flotation are now being worked out.

The transaction will be one of the largest loans ever arranged in this country for a foreign industrial enterprise and will be the first large scale financing of a home industry by German investors since the war.

Clarence Dillon, head of the banking firm bearing his name, recently returned from Germany where he concluded negotiations for the financing.

State Street Notes

CALL money remained at 4¼ per cent.

ENDICOTT-JOHNSON Corp.'s orders for the past six weeks show an increase of 29 per cent. A year or two ago Endicott-Johnson began a very extensive newspaper advertising campaign.

JULY interest and dividend payments, largest on record, are expected to stimulate investment demand for securities.

MILL MEN BUSY ON TEXTILE PROBLEMS

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

Recently we referred to the prospective appointment of a national committee of cotton men to study the textile industry and effect closer co-operation. The committee, from which we may expect constructive work, appears finely representative, including Andrew G. Pierce, president of the American Woolen Company and of Pierce Brothers, Ltd., of New Bedford; former United States Senator Henry F. Lippitt, Manville Jenckes Company, Pawtucket, R. I.; Ward Thoron, treasurer, Merrimack Manufacturing Company, Lowell; Edwin F. Greene, treasurer, Pacific Mills, Lawrence; Robert Amory, president, Boston Manufacturing Company, Waltham; Stuart W. Cramer, president Cramerton Mills, Inc., Cramerton, N. C.; H. R. Fitzgerald, Riverside and Dan River Cotton Mills, Inc., Danville, W. Va.; B. E. Geer, president Judson Mills, Greenville, S. C.; John A. Law, president, Saxon Mills, Spartanburg, S. C.; W. J. Vereen, treasurer Moultrie Cotton Mills, Moultrie, Ga.

Returning from a three months' trip to Europe, James A. Munroe, vice-president of E. T. Wright & Co., Inc., Rockland, reports that conditions appear to him to be steadily improving in the British Isles, and also to a large extent in the Continental countries he visited.

Prominent New England shoe men still seem to have the wanderlust, and several have lately sailed for the Old World. One of the number is Albert M. Creighton, the well-known Lynn manufacturer, who left last week on a combined business and pleasure trip, and another is Horace R. Drinkwater of Edwin Clapp & Son Inc., East Weymouth, and president of the Boston Boot and Shoe Club, who is to enjoy a two months' sojourn in Italy, and other parts of Europe. Ira H. Morse, a prominent retail shoe merchant of Lowell sails July 16 for a big game hunting trip in Africa.

* * *

Special efforts are being made to interest the New England shoe industry in the new Boston-Texas steamship service recently inaugurated by the Newtex. A good many New England-made shoes are sold in Texas, and every shoe factory representative who has traveled that great State is firmly convinced that it offers a very important market for New England footwear, despite the nearer proximity of the St. Louis and Chicago manufacturers. The New England shoe and leather industry has a dual interest in Texas, inasmuch as we receive from that State considerable quantities of hides, as raw materials for our tanneries.

THE DEAF HEAR

Mr. Martin A. Beal, Indian Head St., So. Hanson, Mass., says: "I had been deaf for a few years, so deaf in my left ear that I could hear noises but could not understand what was said. I also had head noises that sounded like a brass band with the bass drum the loudest of all. These noises kept me awake at night and were extremely disagreeable. A doctor who had been treating me died and I did not know what to do. Then I read of Dr. Walsh and had him treat me. Now, thanks to Dr. Walsh's treatment, the noises are gone and I hear again as well as I ever did."

The wonderful power of the X-RAY and MERCURY - QUARTZ LIGHT TREATMENT is proved by the fact that they are accomplishing wonderful results in diseases of every description —CATARRH, DEAFNESS, BRONCHITIS, STOMACH DISEASE, NERVOUS DISORDERS, SKIN DISEASE.

Vindication Won

Pennsylvania's Direct Primary System Rebuked Pepper on World Court

The fact that approximately $3,000,000 was spent, most of it to buy votes, in the recent Pennsylvania primary shocks the moral sense.

But the result of that sordid election shows that the heart of the American electorate is sound and incorruptible. We are hearing many laments from pious frauds that the direct primary system is the cause of the profligate outlay, and that only rich men can engage in such contests. In truth Pennsylvania has vindicated the direct primary system.

Without direct primaries Senator George Wharton Pepper, whose backers spent $1,639,956 to re-elect him, would have been renominated.

With direct primaries Representative Vare, whose backers spent $665,796, is nominated for Senator.

Senator Pepper won his election to the Senate five years ago by his scholarly, brilliant, convincing speeches against the League of Nations. No one except Borah, of Idaho, and Reed, of Missouri, fought more earnestly or eloquently than Pepper. After his election Pepper opposed the World Court. He proposed and won support for his own Senate resolution declaring that the United States should not join the international court until that court was divorced from the League of Nations and ceased to be the mere creature and employe of the league of intriguing foreign officials.

Later a mysterious change occurred in Senator Pepper. The international bankers, the money-power or some invisible interest persuaded him to change his views and vote America into the World Court. This act—and his vote earlier to seat Senator Newberry—alienated public confidence in this brilliant orator, great lawyer and richly endowed citizen of Pennsylvania.

If there were no direct primaries Senator Pepper's plutocratic supporters would not have had to spend a vast sum to reward him for his fidelity to them and for his infidelity to his former convictions. They would have dictated his renomination.

With direct primaries they spent more than a million and a half of dollars to renominate the corporation lawyer and failed.

Vare, without their money or their support, won by a great majority because the people preferred a less learned, less polished, less gifted man who would stand by his honest convictions and vote in the Senate as he talked before he entered it.

Mitchell's Fight Won

Nearly five years ago William Mitchell, then a brigadier-general at the head of our air service, now a resigned colonel, conducted an experiment off Tangier Island on the old battleship Alabama, once the pride of our navy.

Circling above it in an airplane, he dropped explosive bombs weighing a ton each.

The naval experts said an armored battleship was the indispensable spine of the navy, that air bombing couldn't disable it. They flouted Mitchell's contention that the airplane had introduced a revolutionary new factor in naval warfare. The Alabama is being raised to be sold as junk.

Mitchell lost his fight for a unified air service.

But under legislation now finally assured, our navy is to have 1,000 and our army 1,800 new planes within five years, if future Congresses provide the money.

Future Congresses will provide the money if they want to protect future battleships from the Alabama's fate.

First Hundred Years

Savings Bank Celebrates a Birthday

Lynn was a village of 5,000 inhabitants. Shoes were still made by hand. The important community in that part of Massachusetts was Salem, thriving upon its trade with "foreign parts." . . . There was no railroad, no telegraph office, the telephone was far in the future. There were, however, 25 "regular" stage-coaches, leaving Lynn Hotel every day for Boston, Salem, Newburyport and Portsmouth.

This was on June 20th, 1826, when 28 of the foremost men of the village received the charter of the Lynn Institution for Savings.

The new bank was opened for business on July 26th, 100 years ago. Fourteen depositors brought in $325.

From the time of John Quincy Adams to that of Calvin Coolidge this Massachusetts savings bank has endured, standing firm through wars and panic, financial depression, political upheaval. Today, its depositors number 33,000, their deposits more than $20,000,000!

Lynn and its great savings institution have grown together. Fifteen years after the Institution for Savings opened its doors for the first time, Elias Howe invented his sewing machine. The village of 5,000 has become the city of 105,000 inhabitants. A "shoe" city, still, but not QUITE unmindful of the fact—thank you!—that one of its greatest strokes of good fortune was the establishment here of so large a part of the General Electric Company. Lynn would not swap the "G. E." for forty shoe-shops.

Older banks than this were represented at the "Institution's" birthday party, among them the Provident Institution for Savings in the Town of Boston, established in 1816—oldest savings bank in the United States, this one—the Newburyport Institution for Savings, which dates from 1820, and the New Bedford Institution for Savings, which began business in 1825.

From the very beginning, officers and executives of the Lynn Institution have been men of character and integrity, of business and financial acumen, unashamed of the old-fashioned New England virtue of self-reliance. The president of the institution is a grandson of Lynn's second Mayor; its treasurer is a direct descendant of Edmund Ingalls, one of the town's original settlers.

Founded in order to give "every industrious person the great advantage of public security and interest for small sums of money, and to enable them . . . to obtain that personal comfort and independence which arise from prudent conduct," the edifice has in every respect realized the conception of the builders. What it has contributed to life and happiness and the building of character in Lynn is beyond computation by even the [illegible] penetrating public accountant.

TWELVE RULES FOR HEALTHY LIFE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

I HOPE that Winifred Black will not accuse me of plagiarism if I repeat what she quoted from the California State Board of Health announcement.

It gave the following rules for living. They are not new. Some of them have been repeated many times. But we need constantly to come back to them, as they are about the best generalizations known on the subject of health.

The first rule is to breathe plenty of fresh air. This means both day and night. Keep your windows open as much as possible and get outdoors all you can. This does not mean that you should always be cold, but that somehow or other fresh air should always be admitted to your chamber.

Regard over-fatigue as your enemy. Go to bed at 10 o'clock at night and get at least eight hours of sleep. No man can burn the candle at both ends. Sleep may be just a habit, but it is a very necessary habit for most of us.

Drink plenty of water between meals. Water is the universal solvent. It is the best of all diuretics and a good remedy against constipation.

Eat temperately. Partake sparingly of meat and sugar and be sure to get plenty of vegetables and fruit. Remember that your system needs fodder as well as nourishment.

Avoid over-weight. Fat is the enemy of life and it is one's duty to continually guard against it. Take measures against it.

Take measures against infection. This means infections from outside as well as auto-infection. Wash your hands before eating and clean your teeth both night and morning. The most important discovery in medicine was the necessity of keeping clean.

Recover thoroughly from all colds and sore throats. Do not neglect these things, but take time to get over them.

Think wholesome thoughts. Do not allow your mind to dwell on morbidities more than necessary.

Face unpleasant situations frankly and sensibly, but do not worry.

Have yourself examined by a scientific physician at least once a year.

Thus, unless you get run over by the street car, you may live to be a thousand years old, although, on the other hand, you may not. At least the law of averages is in your favor.

WHO SAID "SALESMEN ARE BORN, NOT MADE?"

In the place where you are employed you are not doing the work which brings in money directly to the firm, perhaps.

You realize that the employes who sell the product upon which the business has made its reputation are the ones whom the boss seems to favor. They get the biggest salaries.

You think you would like to give up your present work and sell the commodity since it seems to carry more prestige with the firm.

Better go a little slow in giving up your present place.

Did you ever try to sell anything?

Do you know anything about the rebuffs that a salesman must take if he continues on as a salesman?

Do you know that you can carry on a convincing line of talk?

It is one thing to be able to talk but quite another to bring in the coin as a result of your talk.

It would not take many days of actual experience to teach you that in this highly competitive age it is not an easy thing to sell goods.

If you have a good job stick to it. Eventually you [illegible] get a better salary in the line that you know and can do easily.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

GLORIA feels abused.

"I'm always trying to please everyone and I never get any thanks for it," she cries.

"I'm sure that no one tries harder to be agreeable than I do. Even when I don't really like people I agree with them. I just hate to hurt their feelings, so I can't say 'no' to them. And, of course, everybody knows that about me and comes to me with their troubles.

"If there is a row in the office, each girl comes to me and tells me about the other. And at home it is the same. If my brother has a fight with his wife he tells me about her and then she comes to me and tells me about him. And, of course, I try to side in with both of them because I want everybody to be happy. And I just hate scenes. But do I get thanked for it? I'll say I don't.

"Last week there was a big fuss in the office and three different parties came to me with their versions of the affair. Well, of course, I sided with each party and did a lot of things for them because I hated to refuse. And I surely thought I was helping. But right now things are worse than they were at first. And what do you suppose? THEY BLAME IT ON ME!

THAT'S THE THANKS I GET FOR TRYING TO HELP EVERY-ONE!!
IT'S ALL YOUR FAULT !!!!!
ELSIE ROBINSON

"Things like that are always happening to me. People either impose on me or get awful mad at me because I sympathize with someone else or blame me for interfering, when they themselves asked me to help. Honestly, Elsie, sometimes I don't think it pays to try to be agreeable to everyone. Nobody appreciates it."

Bad Medicine

You've said it, sister. Nobody does. And why should they?

Agreeableness is a delightful virtue if used with discretion. But this business of Being Agreeable to Everyone is bad medicine.

It is bad medicine because it isn't a sincere or healthy reaction.

It is not possible for us to like everyone or agree with every one.

Nor is it desirable that everyone should be liked or agreed with.

A lot of people need to be actively and deliberately disliked.

They are pests and dislike is the natural cure for what ails 'em. This doesn't imply that we should hate or be vindictive to such people. It merely implies that we should show our personal distaste for their selfishness, conceit, laziness, stupidity and general irritating qualities. Unless such qualities are met with popular disapproval, they will increase without restraint until they become a menace. Such disapproval is civilized society's check on savage, anti-social impulses.

That is why it's bad medicine to agree with such people, or sympathize with them or help them work their schemes.

"But I hate to hurt their feelings," cries Gloria.

If they are feelings which are a public nuisance, the sooner they're hurt the better, my dear. And you are not being kind when you strive to avert that hurt. We're set right and cured by our hurts, Gloria. And our mistakes and miseries are often infinitely multiplied because someone steps in and averts a necessary hurt.

"I suppose that's so," concedes Gloria. "But I DO hate to say 'no,' Elsie."

Hard to Say No.

We all hate to say "no," Gloria. But no great, generous love for our fellowman prompts that reluctance. Plain cowardice prompts it. We don't like to arouse antagonism. Most of us "hate scenes" just as you do. Also we love approval and admiration. So in order to avoid scenes, and make ourselves popular, we agree with people. But do we acknowledge the unworthy motives which lie behind that agreement? No indeedy! We protest that we are being great-hearted, noble friends to that universe. And we yell our heads off when the viciousness we have aided and abetted rebounds like a boomerang on our own heads.

Which means that we should all be able to say "NO" at the right time. We should have spunk enough to refuse to listen to complaints which do not concern us, or involve ourselves in situations which are not our business. We should be able to say with calm dignity—"I'm sorry that you are in trouble, but I must refuse to take part in it." And having sense and strength enough to be indifferent to our resultant unpopularity.

And if we WON'T do these things—then we deserve what's coming to us!

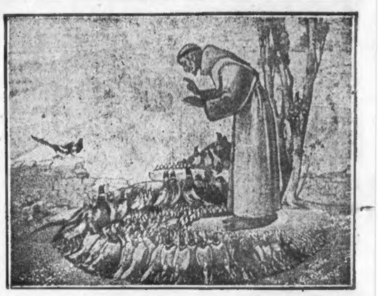
A Beautiful Miracle

Many Others Are Attributed to the Good St. Francis



GOOD BROTHER FRANCIS.

This picture appears in a French exhibition with the title "Brother Francis." It shows the saint setting a good example to all men everywhere, proving in his life and in his miracles, as they have come down to us, the power of a kind heart.

Those who BELIEVE in miracles will like this picture. "Modernists," not believing in miracles, will also like the picture, and they would have liked St. Francis, too, had they known him.

He possessed a kind heart, endless patience and gentleness. And because of his kindness legends concerning him tell how, as shown in this picture, the birds crowded about him, obedient to his voice.

He would not hurt one of them; he never ate the flesh of any living animal.

Even a most savage wolf, that had destroyed flocks and children and shepherds, an extraordinarily big and powerful wolf, yielded to the voice of St. Francis, who called the wolf "brother" and went to it unafraid, trusting in his own goodness. St. Francis trusted every creature, had a kindly feeling toward them all, and they trusted him, even the savage wolf.

Whether you believe in miracles or not, no matter what your opinions are on religion or the beautiful old stories about the saints, you will admit that this world would be better off if there were more men in it with the spirit of the good "Brother Francis."

Poor Democrats

They Need an Issue

Seeking for a 1928 issue, the Democrats are said to have selected the TARIFF.

They think farmers will join a revolt against the tariff, and they are MISTAKEN.

The farmers want Americans to earn good wages that they may pay good prices for farm produce. And while the farmers are not satisfied, for good reasons, they know that they would be far worse off if the tariff were seriously weakened and American labor, skilled and unskilled, brought into direct competition with European and Asiatic labor.

That sounds like old-fashioned, "McKinley full dinner pail" stuff. But it's true. You can't help one part of the population by injuring another part.
